NEW SICKO TOY FRIES & DIES IN THE ELECTRIC CHAIR!

The latest invention to hit the market is truly shocking: A toy electric chair, complete with a screaming doll that thrashes about in agony as smoke pours from its head!

By MICHAEL FORSYTH
Weekly World News

The 2-foot-high, steel-gray Mini Electric Chair co-creates the death throes of real-life convicts so convincingly that the manufacturer is sure the perverse plaything will be a hit.

"We think they are going to be really popular," enthused Ed Edmunds, president of the company, Distortion Unlimited of Greeley, Colo. When a switch is thrown, the fun begins, he explained.

"The chair comes with a built-in boom box which plays a tape of sounds of electricity as well as agonized screams. At the same time, a motor causes the 'convict' to thrash around fairly violently. The doll is able to move about six inches in either direction."

The toy also includes a built-in fog machine that starts pumping during the electrocution. "It looks just like there's smoke pouring from the doll's head," revealed the businessman. "Plus there's a flashing strobe light that really adds to the effect, especially in the dark."

Edmunds says his company has a larger model that's been sold in the past to amusement park houses of horror. "That's how we got the idea of creating the small version."

He admits the toy's ghoulish gadgetry is not to everyone's taste. "I see it more as an executive toy, something a businessman might have on his office desk," said Edmunds.

The toy, available in magic shops and other specialty stores nationwide, is also an ideal display item for retailers selling Halloween goods, he added.

Opponents of capital punishment are up in arms over the bizarre new toy.

"I think it's terrible to trivialize the death penalty or get children involved in it in any way," said Richard Dieter, director of the Washington, D.C.-based Death Penalty Information Center.

But Edmunds insists the toy is meant to be funny. "No one looks at a Wile Coyote cartoon and says it trivializes someone falling off a cliff and getting smashed."

Ray Christopher, boss of Crazy Ray's Horror Store in Seattle, Wash., said he thinks the toy is in bad taste. "It's hideous and dumb," he blasted. "Death in the electric chair is a very horrible thing. To portray that kind of realism is more than just poor taste — it's sick!"

Exposing children to such a toy, even if they only see it on display in a Halloween costume shop, could cause them serious emotional problems, he added.

"It's a step into an office and saw height of depravity, said the minister.

Russian discovery leads to the birth of the century!

Docs deliver baby frozen for 600 years!

By LARRY BELLOWS / Weekly World News

MOSCOW — Russian scientists successfully delivered a living fetus found in the womb of a Mongol woman who froze to death — more than 600 years ago!

The miracle infant lived for nearly 72 hours before it died of a viral infection not associated with the deep-freeze environment it was trapped in for six centuries, according to news accounts.

The baby — a girl the scientists named Trianna — weighed 8 pounds, 12 ounces at the time of her clinical birth. She was described as "amazingly normal" except for minor deformities of the fingers of her left hand.

Carbon dating of the ice and rock in which the mother was found indicates that she died in the mid to late 1300s. The Mongol woman was found in ice rubble on the island of Novaya Sibir. She appears to have been in her late teens or early 20s.

The scientists' astonishing achievement was carried out under a cloak of secrecy on a Russian military base on the Kamchatka Peninsula. However, details of the birth of the frozen fetus were revealed by Dr. Sapar Okuluv, a Moscow specialist in infant care.

Dr. Okuluv, a professor at the Russian Academy of Science, was upset over the Russian refusal to enlist the help of American scientists in the effort to keep the infant alive.

"The secrecy surrounding the project was an unfortunate mistake that signed the baby's death warrant," Dr. Okuluv said. "There are many experts in America with great knowledge of the cryogenic technique of freezing and thawing months pregnant when she died, apparently from the same mystery virus that claimed her baby more than 600 years later.

Her mother was found buried in the frozen wastes of the Arctic

"Temperatures in the area where she was found often reach 150 degrees below zero," the scientist said. "Both mother and baby were carefully wrapped in aluminum foil and totally immersed in a tank of liquid nitrogen and flown to the military base. There X-rays revealed that the woman was carrying a fetus, and the baby was surgically removed, thawed and placed on a

New Cornell University study reveals:

10 WAYS TO KEEP FROM GETTING DUMPED ON BY YOUR LOVED ONES!

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

You can head off arguments with loved ones — and make your most important relationships closer — by following 10 surefire tips, say experts.

The list is based on a new Cornell University study of 250 individuals, along with their mates, friends and relatives.

Here are the most important things you can do to keep relationships on track, researchers found:

1. Give relationships time to develop. True intimacy grows slowly.
2. Be honest and open with those you love. Telling lies, being deceitful and keeping secrets can damage a relationship.
3. Expect imperfections in your loved ones. Nobody is perfect — and sometimes minor shortcomings can even be endearing.
4. Always treat others the way you want to be treated.
5. Take pride in your loved ones' successes. And avoid competing with them or comparing their accomplishments to your own.
6. Don't expect things to always go smoothly. Even the most loving relationships are marked by occasional disagreements and conflicts.
7. Hug your loved ones every day. The warmth of human touch helps get rid of loneliness and despair.
8. Be a good listener. It shows that you care and it makes the other person feel important.
9. Smile. An honest smile shows that you're a warm person.
10. Never break a confidence or talk behind your loved one's back. Nothing will poison a relationship more quickly.

'Termites ate my wooden leg' . . . right out from under me!

WEEKLY WORLD NEWS
SUPER SUMMER ISSUE

Bench says his new artificial leg is not nearly as good as his wooden leg.

PETER BENCH looks at the termite-eaten remains of his hand-carved wooden leg.

By JOE KANE / Weekly World News

Termites gnawed on Peter Bench's wooden leg while he slept peacefully in a tent — and now it's so weak now you could snap it like a twig!

"I'm just sick about it," said Bench, 46, of Jacksonville, Fla. "My father carved that leg for me before he died and I'll never be able to find another one like it.

"This newfangled leg I've got works okay but it's just not the same. My wooden leg had character. I wore it for 32 years and really was attached to it."

The mind-blowing drama unfolded when Bench, who lost his leg in an automobile accident in 1965, went camping in Florida's Everglades on June 16. He cleared a small site and set up his tent.

After a day of fishing, he cooked his dinner over an open fire and called it a night.

He didn't realize it at the time, but he pitched the tent over a mound of voracious Formosan termites — which are so ravenous they have been known to eat through brick to get at a piece of wood.

"I slept like a baby that night and never dreamed that anything was happening to my leg," said Bench.

"But when I woke up the next morning and looked down I couldn't believe my eyes.

"My leg was literally covered with termites.

"The damn things looked like they were eating corn on the cob."

Bench wiped out the termites with a can of bug spray but the damage was done.

The leg was clearly too weak to walk on so he used one of his tent poles as a cane and hobbled back to his car.

"I've talked to a few people about repairing the leg but they tell me it's too far gone," said Bench. "It really is a shame. It's like losing my real leg all over again."

Boy, 10, backs over mom with family car

WICHITA, Kan. — A mother who allowed her 10-year-old son to back the family car down the driveway fell while directing him and was crushed to death when he hit the gas pedal instead of the brake.

Police said the 28-year-old mom, whose name wasn't released, stumbled while walking backward down the driveway. Her son panicked and backed over his mother. She died at the scene.

The dead mom had allowed her young son to move the car so that he

Hot new craze hits California — lollipops filled with bugs & worms!

CRICKET LICK-IT LOLLIPOP is a mint-flavored sucker with an insect inside.

By [redacted]
Weekly World News

PISMO BEACH, Calif. — The hottest West Coast rage is a new line of lollipops — with dead bugs and worms in their centers!

The sickening suckers, created and marketed by a company called Hot Lix, are sold throughout America in outlets as prestigious as the gift shop at the University of Michigan Exhibit Museum of Natural History in Ann Arbor, Mich.

The most popular item in a series of gross-out goodies is the Cricket Lick-It lollipop. It's a delicious, clear, mint-flavored candy on a stick — with a real cricket inside. But discerning critter cravers can also enjoy such favorites as:

● THE APPLE SUCKER — apple-flavored candy with a worm inside.

● THE TEQUILA SUCKER — tequila-flavored candy, also with a worm in the middle.

● INSECTnSIDE — toffee-flavored candies with a larva in them.

"We raise these bugs on our bug farm," said a perfectly serious Robert Miller, manager of Hot Lix. "Then we bake them thoroughly to sanitize them.

"And there's actually protein in there."

How one eats the creepy candy depends upon one's taste.

"Some people bite the lollipops almost to the bug or worm and then stop," says Miller. "Others crunch the centers with enthusiasm. It's their favorite part."

Of course not everyone likes the Hot Lix line.

"Most people take us in the right spirit — a spirit of fun," says Miller. "But believe it or not, there are some animal-rights groups who get up in arms over our products, saying they constitute cruelty to insects. I guess they have a right to their opinion but it's hard to take them seriously."

If looking at the picture above stimulates your appetite, you can order your own varmin on a stick through:

HOT LIX, 791 Dolliver, Pismo Beach, Calif. 93448 or call 1-800-325-2949 or 1-800-EAT WORM.

JESUS' SECOND COMING IS JUST MONTHS AWAY!

WEEKLY WORLD NEWS
SPECIAL SUPER ISSUE!

HEAVEN'S GATE CULT mass suicide was predicted in the Dead Sea Scrolls

By RANDY JEFFRIES / Weekly World News

Copyright © 1997 Weekly World News

The Second Coming of Jesus Christ is just months away — and the events on the nightly news prove it, say top Bible experts!

The Holy Bible, the Dead Sea Scrolls and other religious writings say Jesus' return to Earth will be foreshadowed by certain very specific occurrences — and all a thinking person has to do is glance at a newspaper or TV news show to see that those things are already taking place.

AUSTRALIAN missionary Louis Kinsy says the famine — and cannibalism — in North Korea were foretold in the Book of Matthew.

BIBLE SCHOLAR Reverend Thomas Glasmont.

Hundreds of the world's most revered men of God are already on record as saying we are in the Earth's final days, when Christ will come back to claim His children and take them to Heaven. The experts cite five key news stories as concrete evidence:

1. The Oklahoma City bombing
2. The Heaven's Gate cult suicides
3. The murder of JonBenet Ramsey
4. The famine in Korea
5. The earthquake in Iran

Famed evangelist Oral Roberts, Australian missionary Louis Kinsy and noted Missouri Bible scholar Rev. Thomas Glarmont are extremely vocal in linking these stories to the Second Coming.

Rev. Glarmont, a St. Louis-based expert on the Dead Sea Scrolls, says, "There are two stunning passages that link today's news to the Second Coming. The first says, 'Jesus will return while the world mourns the death of a beautiful girl child. Her family's great riches cannot protect her from cruel murder. Jesus will comfort those who grieve.'

"This verse clearly refers to the JonBenet Ramsey killing.

"The next verse is just as startling: 'In the days before Jesus' return, so people will take their lives because of false belief. Christ will come to reward the true believers.'

"There was much controversy when the 39 members of Heaven's Gate poisoned themselves. Many thought the passage must have cited the number wrong. But just over a month later a 40th member, Wayne Cooke, also killed himself — fulfilling the chilling prophecy."

Episcopalian missionary Kinsy of Perth quotes little-known passages, originally in the Book of Matthew, that were removed from the Bible in the 16th century by radical church leaders.

"Jesus told His disciples of His return," said Kinsy. "He said, 'There will be a great earthquake in Persia and a fearsome famine in the East and men will devour men.' It doesn't take a genius to know that He's referring to the recent earthquake in Iran and food shortage in North Korea where cannibalism is running rampant."

In Oral Roberts' book, The Second Coming of Jesus — Sooner Than You Think, the revered man of God writes of the Oklahoma City bombing: "When I first learned of this inhuman act . . . I was immediately reminded by the Lord of the verse in Genesis 6:13, 'And God said unto Noah . . . the Earth is filled with violence.'

"The implication is clear. The same things that were happening before the great flood are happening now. The Bible says that this violence precedes the end of the world when Jesus will return to carry His believers to Heaven."

Roberts points out that the bombing of the Federal Building in Oklahoma City is specific proof that these are the End Times.

According to Kinsy and Rev. Glarmont, the scriptures say two more major news events are predicted. After these things occur, Jesus will emerge from Heaven.

1. An earthquake in California will kill 3 million people.
2. A major world leader will be found to have ties with a Satanic group and confess to being a Devil worshipper.

EVANGELIST Oral Roberts, right, points out that the bombing of the Federal Building, above, in Oklahoma City is specific proof that these are the End Times.

sure signs of the End Times, warn Bible experts!

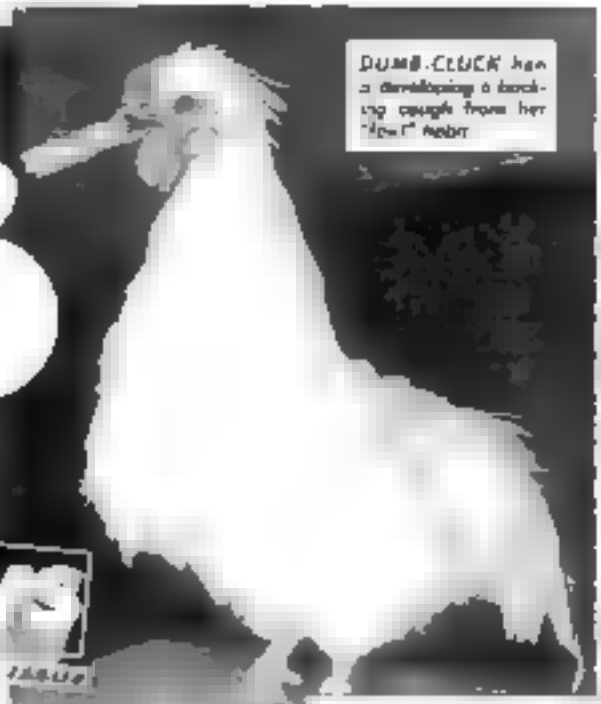
Hooked hen smokes like a chimney!



By JOE KANE / Weekly World News

KILLOROLIN, Ireland — Henrietta the hen has a fowl habit — she smokes cigars and two packs of cigarettes a day.

What's even worse, the puffing pullet only smokes unfiltered butts and is developing a hacking cachia

Now bigwigs with the Irish Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals are up on their hind legs bowling that it's fowl play to allow a dumb cluck to endanger her health by smoking They want Henrietta to quit by going cold turkey

"I suppose it's quite a funny situation, but we're not really in favor of anybody allowing a chicken to smoke," said a spokesman for the animal group concerned over the hen's health

Henrietta's hilarious-looking habit began four months ago when little John Maughinn, son of the owner of the farm where the feisty fryer lives, spotted his dad's cigarette still smouldering in an ashtray The devilish 4-year-old prankster thought it would be a real hoot to get a chicken smoke, so he tossed the burning butt in Henrietta

To John's surprise, Henrietta loved smoking In fact she began pestering him for more

Within a few months, the hen was hooked on tobacco and was up to four cigars and two packs of cigarettes a day

John and his dad get a kick out of the chicken's bizarre habit. Although they admit they're concerned about the cost. Two packs a day isn't chicken feed.

But John's dad, Jimmy, 41, said he's probably going to keep on buying tobacco products for his hen.

"I'm sort of enjoying driving these animal lovers up a wall with Henrietta's smoking, so I'm not going to try to stop her now," he said

Animal-rights groups want the chicken to quit — cold turkey!

TOKYO — An orthopedic surgeon got a stern reprimand from the police after he left a severed human leg in the taxi he was riding in.

The absentminded surgeon was transporting the leg from one hospital to another, where it was to be used for knee research

Cops returned the leg, along with a brief note that carried a pointed scolding "It is illegal to transport human body parts in Japanese taxis."

Q Did Friends star Jennifer Aniston get her start in Night of the Lepus, that B-horror movie in which the menace is a herd of giant rabbits?

— Brian D., Miami, Fla.

A No at age 26, Jennifer is far too young to have appeared in the 1972 bomb. However she did star in the 1981 chiller Leprechaun in which the Irish "monster" was about three feet tall. The horrible part was that I was supposed to be terrified of the leprechaun. I felt like such a chump," Jennifer recalls. "The director would be behind me telling me, 'This thing is after you and it's chasing you and it's chasing you.' I've never felt like a bigger fool in my life."

City tells its 1.3 million people if you light up, you'll be locked up

HOLY SMOKES!

No ifs, ands or butts about it — thousands are jailed when they can't kick habit

IN QUEZON CITY, the Philippines, smokers are locked up with murderers and rapists.

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

French businessman Jules Benois had a reservation at one of the Philippines' ritziest hotels, but the stunned salesman spent his first night in town locked up in a rat-infested jail cell — because he dared to smoke a cigarette!

Fuming Jules is one of thousands of flabbergasted folks who've been hustled off to the hoosegow for puffing cigars or cigarettes since Quezon City enacted the nastiest no-smoking law in the world.

Under the new law, you can be locked up for lighting up anywhere — except in your own home.

"I'd just gotten into town and never dreamed they had a loony law like that," the bewildered businessman told reporters.

ARRESTED SMOKER pays fine at city parish cashier

"I was standing on the curb looking for a cab, and the minute I lit my cigarette, a sour-faced cop grabbed me and tossed me into a paddy wagon.

"The next thing I knew I was in a cell, surrounded by murderers and thieves — and a couple of ugly-looking rats skittering around the floor.

"I spent the night there, but believe me, I didn't get a wink of sleep. I wasn't about to close my eyes in a place like that."

Scowling cops swept through the city of 1.3 million people, rounding up thousands of unsuspecting citizens just hours after the smoking ban went into effect.

And they've been issuing puffers in the paloy ever since.

"Our city jails were already crowded with muggers, murderers and other hoodlums," one police boss said.

"Now they're absolutely bulging at the seams.

"We've got 30 people in cells made to hold three or four."

Jules was released after paying a $10 fine — the average Filipino factory hand's weekly wage.

"I was drinking coffee in a restaurant with three of my friends when the cops came in and dragged us away for smoking," recalled mill worker Manuel Laparte. "The law had just gone into effect and we didn't even know about it.

"There's something wrong with a law that punishes people who've never done anything truly bad in their lives."

MOTHER NATURE'S CURES — RIGHT OUT OF THE KITCHEN!

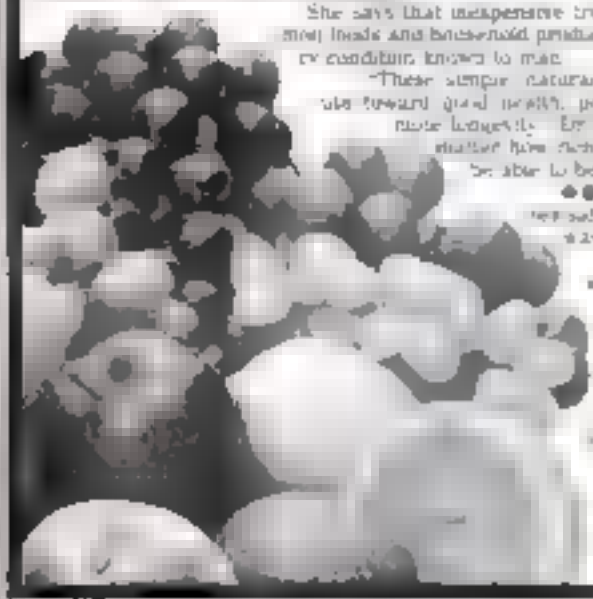
Folk remedies that really work!

You don't need fancy specialists and expensive drugs to stay fit as a fiddle — because simple folk remedies can cure what ails you!

That's the amazing conclusion of Dr. Ingrid Sherman, author of a book on folk medicine called Natural Remedies.

She says that inexpensive treatments that use common foods and household products will cure nearly every condition known to man.

"These simple, natural remedies will restore you toward good health, prevent illness and promote longevity," Dr. Sherman said. "And no matter how sick you are, you'll be able to benefit from them.



● Beauty treatment: Apply a paste mixed from sea salt and water. Let stay on face for 15 minutes. Then wash off.

● Bladder trouble: Drink apple cider or watermelon juice.

● Blood circulation problems: Put your feet up every so often for better circulation. Take regular exercise and massage feet every night before you retire. Take vitamin B-12 daily.

● Bruises: Apply a slice of raw potato.

● Complexion: For a glowing, healthy complexion, eat plenty of carrots and cold cereals.

● Corns: Apply plenty of warm liquid.

● Corns: Freshen up a slice of fresh lemon overnight, or soak feet for 20 minutes in warm water and common baking soda. The soda dissolves the hard parts.

● Constipation: Before going to bed, eat six black olives or stewed prunes or eat celery with each meal.

● For depression: Avoid tranquilizers, but do take vitamin B-6.

● For lack of energy: Use vitamin D, calcium and vitamin B-6 (they should be the natural vitamins, not the synthetic kind).

For a quick pick me up, drink three teaspoons of honey mixed with two tablespoons of apple or lemon juice.

● Bloodshot eyes: Put a drop of castor oil into the eye.

● Freckles: Mash a few strawberries and apply to freckles. Leave on overnight. Wash off in the morning.

● Hay fever: Drink plenty of lemon juice and eat lots of green vegetables. Don't eat starchy foods and discontinue milk and milk products.

● Migraine headaches: Put your thumb against the roof of your mouth and press up hard.

● Skin blemishes and pimples: Make a paste of brewer's yeast plus water and apply to your face. Keep it on for one hour and wash off with water. Your skin will look great and tingle all over.

FORGET expensive skin creams — and eat more onions.

● Toothache: Place a piece of garlic in cavity of tooth or boil raisin or fig in milk and apply to teeth while hot.

Man shipwrecked without food for one year loses 765 pounds!

BERGEN, Norway — Authorities here have rescued a man from a rocky island in the North Atlantic where he was stranded for more than a year — with NO food!

Incredibly, skinny survivor Hjort Danielsen weighed a staggering 910 pounds when the vessel he was on foundered on the island and sank, taking 11 other people to a watery grave. But when the hunk was found by fishermen 13 months later, starvation had whittled his 6-foot-3 body down to a puny 145 pounds!

"He literally lived off nothing but his own fat and rainwater," confirmed a spokesman for the Norwegian Coast Guard. "This is one of the most extraordinary stories of human survival on record."

Firemen rush into blazing inferno — and find family watching TV!

By ANTHONY DERRAGA / Weekly World News

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa — Firemen were dumbfounded when they rushed into a blazing house and found a family of three curled up on a sofa beside a flaming wall — calmly watching TV!

"I couldn't believe what I was seeing," Fire Capt. Michael Steyn wrote in an official report on the incident.

"Flames were shooting up a wall less than five feet from these people and three feet of thick, black smoke had gathered at the ceiling.

"I screamed at the family to get the hell out of there and they looked at me like I was crazy. We finally had to force them out. And they made it perfectly clear they didn't like it."

Firemen said the blaze was caused by faulty wiring in an upstairs bedroom of the family's five-bedroom home. Robert and Sally Booth, both 43, and their 16-year-old daughter Pat were fully aware that their house was burning.

Mrs. Booth actually called the fire department before she went back to the sofa to watch "Murder She Wrote" starring Angela Lansbury with her husband and daughter on their big-screen TV.

"When we got there the fire had burned through the second floor and roof and you could actually see flames in the little room where the family was watching TV," said Capt. Steyn.

Mrs. Booth was rough-handled and her husband and daughter were rubbing their eyes from the smoke. But the television was going full blast.

After forcing the family out of the house, fire fighters wearing oxygen masks tried to extinguish the blaze. But the last man on the scene noticed that "the family's lounge furniture" in the ground-floor living room was still intact.

Mrs. Booth told reporters: "We like TV and we rely on most Angela Lansbury. We were just trying to stick it out till the end of the show."

NEWBORN BABY IS A GIRL — & A BOY!

HE WANTS it to be a boy, she wants it to be a girl! Dad Pierre Gascon, left, and wife Rochelle want a judge to decide which sex their infant, center, will become

By SYLVIA PRESTON / Weekly World News

How mom and dad are fighting over which it will be!

AVIGNON, France — A new mother and father are going to court to determine the sex of their baby — which was born May 30 with both male and female reproductive organs!

Doctors say they'll have no trouble removing one set of sex organs. But Rochelle and Pierre Gascon want a civil court judge to choose the sex because the father wants a boy and the mother wants a girl.

"We've got a golden opportunity most parents will never have — a chance to choose the sex of our child — and I want our firstborn baby to be a boy," said Gascon, 31. Mrs. Gascon, 28, couldn't disagree more. She says she went through hell carrying the baby for nine months and she wants a girl.

"My husband and I don't see eye to eye on this so we've asked a judge to decide," she said. "There's no animosity between us. We've got the baby to think about. It needs a mother and a dad."

The doctor who delivered the baby, obstetrician Caterina Hermanne, says a decision needs to be made quickly.

The infant was born with a rare "sexual ambiguity disorder," which means it has complete sets of male and female reproductive organs. And the sooner one set is completely removed, said the doctor, the better.

"It's a relatively simple procedure to remove one set of organs but the operation should not be delayed," she said.

"I realize that the parents face an agonizing decision. But the confusion that results from having both male and female sex organs could be damaging to the infant. At this point it doesn't even have a name."

The Gascons intend to represent themselves in the court case to determine the baby's sex.

They say they have agreed to abide by the judge's decision "and never look back."

"We both have strong opinions on the matter but we haven't forgotten that the welfare of our child is at stake," Gascon said.

The history-making case has been scheduled for August 6.

MY AMERICA MY AMERICA MY ANGER

Not long ago, men who liked cats were considered light in the loafers!

MEN WHO LIKE TROPICAL FISH ARE SISSIES!

I'm madder than Charlie the Tuna in a net over a new report that says more and more men are getting tropical fish as pets!

Any so-called red-blooded American male who has an aquarium in his house is a gol durned sissy, in my humble opinion.

In my day, even a man who liked cats was considered a little light in the loafers, if you get my drift.

But this fish thing has gone too far. If my son Jimbo had ever asked for an aquarium full of fish when he was a kid, I'd have disowned him and sent him off to San Francisco, he-cryin' out loud.

Let's face it. If old Captain Ahab had had a bunch of dainty pet fish when he was a boy, he never would have grown up to harpoon Moby Dick, now would he?

A man ought to have dogs or cats or rats or snakes or lizards or something. That's the way my mama raised me, by gummy.

I figure boys who like tropical fish instead of hollerin' cows probably don't like girls, either. Let's face it. I'd rather a son of mine race peace lessons than sprinkle food in an aquarium. Of course, that wrestle makes it easier to distribute the flakes evenly, I guess.

Now if a man has an aquarium full of man-eating piranhas and feeds them squealing kittens every other day, that's one so bad. But a tank-full of angelfish? Gimme a break!

When's the last time you saw an angelfish chase down a bully and give 'em a knot on him?

I get hot under the collar just thinkin' about how the wimps over at PETA are stop at nothing to ram our way down the throats of us. And I'll bet you a shot of Old Crow that you don't have to dive too deep into this aquarium thing to find some snivelling weenies in the group urging parents to make their male children more "sensitive."

Now I don't know about you, but sensitive ain't the same thing as swishy to me.

Hallelujah! God in Heaven! I relieved my self right. I mean, this kid would've eaten Flipper if he'd have had half a chance.

And my grandson Teddy was the only kid in the neighborhood who didn't cry when he saw that movie Big Willy about that stupid whale.

As far as I'm concerned, the only place for a fish is on the end of a hook, by gum. Or in a bowl of chowder.

On the other hand, if little girls wanna have an aquarium, that's great.

Maybe they'll learn to identify the ones they'd be hooking up for their husbands when they grow up.

Want to turn your little boy into Liberace? Then buy him an aquarium!

PANSY PIANIST Liberace loved tropical fish. 'Nuff said!

DARWIN, Australia — A veterinarian, two of his assistants and a newspaper photographer were injured by a Bengal tiger — when the beast snapped out of anesthesia during dental surgery and went on a rampage!

Dr. Michael Hankhorn, who was working on the badly infected tooth of a game park tiger named Tattler, suffered the worst injury in the attack. He was hospitalized and required more than 220 stitches to close the wounds inflicted by the animal.

Dr. Hankhorn doesn't blame Tattler for the attack.

LAYING DOWN ON THE JOB pays off for Joe as passersby give loose change to man who they believe is a pathetic soul living out of a cardboard box.

By FRANK TRAPP / Weekly World News

WASHINGTON — Joe Tavis drives a Toyota van, lives in a spacious three-bedroom house and earns $60,000 a year — posing as a homeless bum!

"There may be a better job, but I certainly don't know of one," said Tavis, 38. "I'm out on the streets six, maybe seven hours a day.

"It pays good money. And best of all, I don't have a boss telling me what to do."

Tavis started panhandling after the savings and loan company he worked for folded in 1984. He looked for another job but didn't find one right away.

On a whim, he put on dirty clothes, stood on a street corner with a cup — and hummed a whopping $115 in one day.

"I realized that panhandling was the life for me," said Tavis. "For the next month I averaged $700 a week but I figured I could do better if I approached the job like a pro.

"I started setting up a cardboard box beside a park bench so people would think I lived in it and my profits soared.

"Instead of $700 a week, I started bringing in almost $1,200.

DURING HOLIDAYS, the professional bum estimates he earns as much as $400 a day.

savings and loan. Without the aggravation, I make car and mortgage payments and dine out on a regular basis."

In fact, Tavis plays the stock market with the money he earns and takes a four-week vacation every year.

And while some people have questioned the ethics of what he does, he insists that it's perfectly legal.

He says he pays taxes on every

WORLD'S LARGEST SPIDER CAN SWALLOW AN ENTIRE MOUSE — AND LIVES FOR 30 YEARS!

The hairy, scary-looking tarantula can grow bigger than a man's hand, go without food for two years and swallow a entire mouse!

The largest of the creepy spiders is South America's bird-eating tarantula — which has an awesome 10-inch leg span.

Tarantulas are also found in the southern and western U.S., and in southern Europe.

They feed chiefly on beetles and other insects, but some prey on frogs, lizards, toads, mice and small birds. Like other spiders, tarantulas are only able to sip food in liquid form, so they first cover their victims with an acid-like fluid that causes them to slowly dissolve. A tarantula is able to ingest an entire mouse, bones and all, in about one day.

But unlike most other spiders, the tarantula doesn't spin a web to catch prey. The fleet-footed bug actually runs down its quarry. And tarantulas live much longer than other spiders, up to 30 years!

Amazingly, tarantulas can fast for two years and live without water for as long as seven months.

Contrary to popular belief, tarantulas are not easily provoked to attack and their venom is usually no more troublesome to a human being than a bee sting.

Because their bodies are covered by very fine hairs which can irritate any animal that touches them, most creatures avoid the tarantula except for the tarantula hawk wasp, which can sting the spider into paralysis.

The largest tarantula in the U.S. has a body two inches long and a five-inch leg span.

My boyfriend's an angel — but he's uglier than sin!

SUPER SUNDAY SPECIAL!

AMERICA'S MOST OUTSPOKEN ADVICE COLUMNIST

Dear Dotti. My boyfriend is the kindest, most loving and sincere man I've ever met. He treats me like I'm a queen and I love him madly — but he's uglier than sin and I'm embarrassed to be seen with him in public. I'm confused, Dotti. Is it possible for someone to love a person but not be physically attracted to him? That's the way I feel but somehow it doesn't make any sense. What should I do about our relationship? — Anne in Key Largo

Dear [redacted] Don't be a pinhead! If you really loved this man, you'd be attracted to him mentally AND physically. Since you aren't, you [redacted] yourself and him a favor and get yourself a new man. Either that or put a bag over his head.

Boss snoozes while WE carry the load!

Dear Dotti. My supervisor slept his way to the top — not in the sexual sense but in the sense that he sneezes for hours at his desk! The guy started out as a regular worker and keeps getting promotions despite the fact that he spends his time sleeping or trying to get out of work. The big boss's office is in another town and he doesn't know what's going on. Help! — Furious in Milford

Dear Furious: Put the wind's turned in a heap of warm water over the time he falls asleep at his desk. It may not cure him, but at least you'll get some revenge — because the prick will make him wet his pants!

My wife's a germ freak and I think she's nuts!

Dear Dotti: I think something's wrong with my wife. Recently she started complaining about germs and dirt and now she's washing her hands 50 times a day. She's even wearing surgical gloves and wash[illegible]

Dear Angry Kid in Colony Springs: I hear what you're saying, but reserve your hate. There may be life after this. There may be life after that. There may be life after the next one, too!

Dear Ugly in Maple Bay: At least you admit it!

Dear Curious in Minot: Statistics show that 10 percent of people were taking lunch breaks when God gave out brains and you're one of them!

think my wife is going insane!" — Benjamin in Spencer

Dear Benjamin: I'm no psychiatrist but your wife sounds perfectly normal to me. Lots of people wear surgical masks and wash their hands often. My doctor is one of them!

I asked about sex — & got a mouth full of soap

Dear Dotti: A couple of weeks ago I heard some kids at school talking about sex. They wouldn't clue me in, and when I asked my mom, she washed my mouth out with soap. You're my last hope, Dotti. Tell me what's going on. I'm 11 years old. — Curious in Boston

Dear Curious: An 11-year-old child is much too young to concern herself with sex. Write back when you're 21 and I'll be more than happy to fill you in.

of coffee and talking with my next door neighbor recently when her 10-year-old son walked into the kitchen totally naked!

Being the lady that I am, I did my best to avoid staring at him, but I just couldn't help myself. And then his mother had the gall to comment on how handsome the boy looked. I was floored, Dotti. I was offended and I had absolutely no idea what to say to them. I finished my coffee fast and said I had to run some errands and hotfooted for the door. What would you have done if you were in my shoes? — Megan in Pasadena

Dear Megan: When crazy stuff starts like that you've got to think fast. Since most men are EXTREMELY sensitive about their masculinity and literally die when someone questions it, I would have told the kid "How disappointing. You look much bigger in clothes." Then you would have left the room and the kid would have been left to wonder if he was a man or a mouse!

Fiance says he needs more than one woman!

Dear Dotti: About six months ago I got engaged to a man who is perfect in every way but one. He can't be loyal to one woman and has at least five other girlfriends that I know of. I've asked him to stop seeing other women but he says it's too hard to stay true to one girl. We'll be married in a few weeks and I'm not sure our marriage will work. What do you think? — Julie in Green Bay

JULIE in Green Bay

Dear Julie: The way I see it you can do one of two things. Stand in line to see your mom kiss Ronald — or find a man who has the guts to stay with one gal.

Women ain't good for nothin' but cookin'!

Dear Dotti: My brother says girls are only good for cooking and that really ruffles my feathers. I think men and women are equals. And I really want to know what you think. — Angry in New York

LOTTERY WINNER DROPS DEAD

...after his dingbat sister LOSES ticket worth $11.5M!

By ELAINE ROBERTS
Weekly World News

SISTER Gisela Junggeselle blames herself for her brother's death

JACKPOT WINNER Werner Junggeselle had a fatal heart attack when he learned his sister had lost his $11.5 million lottery ticket

PULDA, Germany — A 41-year-old man had a heart [illegible] and died when he found out his sister had lost the $11.5 million lottery [illegible] that [illegible] have made him wealthy beyond his wildest dreams!

"I feel terrible, just [illegible]," Gisela Junggeselle told reporters. "[illegible] brother played [illegible] lottery for 15 years and never won anything.

"Then, when he finally did hit the jackpot, I had to tell him I misplaced the ticket. I think it badly and I know he would, too.

"But I didn't think he'd die over it. The whole thing is just so tragic and I certainly feel that I'm to blame."

Werner Junggeselle, a mechanic with a history of heart problems, was vacationing when he picked up a newspaper and found out about his win.

He called his sister to confirm that he'd won the lottery — and she did confirm it.

"I didn't have the heart to tell him the truth," said Miss Junggeselle, 53.

"I had promised him faithfully that I would take care of his ticket while he was out of town.

"The last time I saw it was about two days after he left. It was on the kitchen table and all I can figure is that I threw it away with the garbage."

When her brother got home, Miss Junggeselle tried to break the bad news gently — but the shock was still more than he could bear.

"His eyes bugged out, then he clutched his hand to his chest and gasped," she said.

"Then he fell to the floor dead." Police investigated the possibility of foul play but quickly ruled it out, newspaper reports said.

Lottery officials said the jackpot that would have been Junggeselle's will be distributed equally among 10 runners-up, who will each pocket $1.15 million.

"Wherever Werner is, I hope he can find it in his heart to forgive me," Miss Junggeselle said.

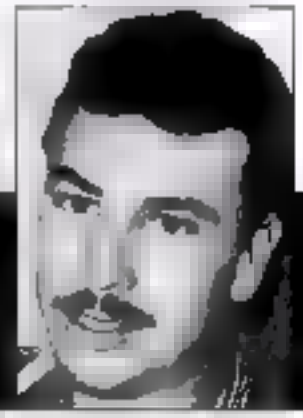
HUSBAND TRIES TO KILL

AFTER. For $5,000 cosmetic surgery Sarah Clement ended up with a nose that looked like a job of modeling clay.

BEFORE. Sarah wanted an operation to reduce her oversized hook nose



REVENGE-MAD HUSBAND Philip Clement vowed [redacted] the plastic surgeon who ruined his wife's nose.

By TOM SNOW / Weekly World News

NANCY, France — An angry husband [redacted] sliced the [redacted] tires on a doctor's [redacted] BMW for botching his wife's nose job!

Philip Clement was arrested and charged with destruction of property and attempted murder but insists he had every right to "make the doctor pay."

"She never was Raquel Welch, but now she looks like Jimmy Durante," says Clement.

"What was I supposed to do — say, 'That's okay, doc. Everybody makes mistakes'?"

The bizarre drama began when Clement's wife, Sarah, decided to have cosmetic surgery on her oversized hook nose.

Dr. Harold Pinaut reportedly agreed to shape and slenderize it for $5,000 and arranged to perform the surgery on May 19.

"He assured me that the procedure was simple and promised me a beautiful new nose," said Mrs. Clement. "The surgery seemed to go smoothly and I was confident of a good job because he said things couldn't have gone better.

"But when he removed the bandages a few days later, I couldn't believe my eyes. My new nose was fat and lumpy and actually had a big bump on the side.

"It looked like somebody had shoved a glob of modeling clay against my face. When Philip saw it, he was angrier than I was.

"He said, 'I'm going to kill that ROB.'"

In his statement to the police, Clement said he "snapped and decided to get revenge."

He initially intended to firebomb Dr. Pretel's house, but decided to slice the brake lines on the BMW because he had heard that the car was the surgeon's pride and joy.

The doctor miraculously escaped injury when the brakes failed and he crashed. Clement was arrested two days later. If convicted as charged, he faces a stiff fine and a prison sentence of up to 10 years, police said.

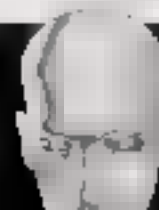
NEW SIGN OF THE END TIMES?

MYSTERIOUS 'FLOATING HEAD' SEEN BY HUNDREDS

Eerie face appears out of thin air and warns individuals of the coming Apocalypse!



Floating Head warns that deadly plant viruses will appear, killing off the seeds of edible plants and crops and starving millions of people around the world.

Terrible weapons will be invented which will utilize sound waves to strike the central nervous system and kill millions of people and animals.

A horrifying epidemic will cause infertility in both men and women, threatening humanity with extinction as the birthrate declines to zero, and

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — People all across America have sighted a terrifying new sign of the End Times: A disembodied head that appears mysteriously and warns of the approaching Apocalypse!

Shaken witnesses say the eerie apparition — which so far has materialized in Oregon, California, Utah, Iowa, Connecticut and North Carolina — utters dire predictions about the last days of the millennium. Experts in psychic phenomena have dubbed it the "Floating Head," because it has appeared to at least 248 people around the country.

"The first sighting of the Floating Head was reported in Los Angeles in March," said Dr. Christopher Conniester, head of the American Society for Psychic Research. "Since then the identical vision has been seen over and over, and the reports are totally consistent. It's amazing to find so many witnesses so widely separated."

Although the apparition seems to herald terrifying events that will happen toward the end of this century, it appears to be very distressed itself, angrily asked questions and speaks to people who are not yet even mentally enlightened.

Among the Floating Head's dire warnings are predictions of [illegible] changes in the world's weather systems, earthquakes and earthquakes of a magnitude never before recorded in the annals of the world.

● The apparition has spoken of [illegible] of the oceans [illegible] of carcasses of whales, [illegible] and other sea creatures [illegible] the world.

● A terrifying epidemic of [illegible] is foreseen by the Floating Head, which is warning of a [illegible] of people.

● A new type of [illegible] is warning against [illegible] the nervous system, crippling and killing millions of people.

● The organization of child prostitution is a staggering 87 percent of nations around the world in the face of the criminal.

The Floating Head usually materializes without explanation, [illegible] and disappears in a similar manner.

Witnesses say the head speaks in a deep, quavering voice with echoing undertones that reverberate through the air. It has a penetrating, menacing stare and apparently it's impossible to look away from it when it appears.

To date, the ominous Floating Head has materialized only before adults between the ages of 35 and 60. It seems to be trying to bring serious attention to its prophecies. Dr. Conniester says, and appears to be targeting witnesses who will do the most when they describe the apparition.

"We do not know where this thing comes from, but we do know that it is driven by a strong need to [illegible] message [illegible] and it seems determined to spread the word."

INCREDIBLE image of the Floating Head as it appeared in a river in this photo taken by Rebecca Wetmore, whose eyewitness account appears elsewhere on these pages.

Floride woman photographs Floating Head

ST PETERSBURG, Fla. — Rebecca Wetmore was only one the Floating Head — she actually photographed it!

When the apparition materialized on the surface of a tranquil river mere feet from a country house, spunk-thinking Rebecca grabbed her camera to capture the image.

"I was getting ready for a canoe trip and had my camera in my backpack, so I snapped a photo," she recalls. "I wasn't sure it would come out because my hands were trembling so badly."

Like other eyewitnesses, accountant Rebecca, 33, was alone when the head appeared. At first she thought it was a panel of bright light just under the surface or a weird trick of the light on the water. Then the spectral vision spoke to her.

"It said, 'Tell them they must prepare to meet their makers,'" Rebecca said. "It said, 'They will face the wrath of God.' And it started listing all these terrible events that will come to pass.

"It foretold a terrible war that would sweep through the plant world, killing every green and growing thing. It said there would be a tidal wave of crime and corruption around the world that would bring society to the brink of collapse. It had a really awesome message, really chilling."

Rebecca says a cloud passed over the sun, the water darkened and the Floating Head disappeared.

"I was so upset, I canceled my canoe trip," she said.

Monk hasn't slept a wink in 76 years!

BUDDHIST monk Dawa says anyone can learn to live without sleep

VIENNA, Austria — Psychiatrists are [illegible] to unravel [illegible] secrets of an 87-year-old monk who hasn't slept a wink in 76 years.

Field investigators [illegible] with the [illegible] Health Organization reportedly found the Buddhist holy man living alone [illegible] west of Outer Mandhata in mysterious Tibet.

Sources in the international research community confirmed reports that the sprightly old man agreed to undergo [illegible] and has been under observation at [illegible] more than three [illegible] believes all mankind [illegible] optional, as he does.

The author of a report obtained from the research facility called the monk "the greatest wonder of the modern world."

"That statement isn't as outrageous as it sounds if you realize what is being discovered about this man," declared Dr. Bernard Holtzman, a German researcher who is fighting to make the secret study of Dawa public.

"He was awake through two world wars as well as the conflicts in Korea and Vietnam, awake through the worldwide Depression of the 1930s, awake when Russia launched Sputnik in 1957 and again when America sent the first man to the moon.

"You could literally fill a history book with the events he has not slept through. It sounds fantastic, but from what I've seen of the research, he hasn't taken so much as a catnap since 1901 — when he was 11 years old."

Brief news items based on leaks and rumor about Dawa have been appearing in top newspapers throughout Asia and Europe.

But nothing concrete was published until Dr. Holtzman obtained a copy of the still-confidential research report and showed it to reporters.

The startling document made it clear that investigators — initially skeptical about Dawa's ability — became convinced he doesn't sleep after a round-the-clock, twelve-week study in which he never once closed his eyes, the report said.

Using the most advanced testing equipment, experts determined that he could stay awake and actually hold conversations while his vital signs hovered at levels lower than those normal people have when sound asleep.

"Most puzzling of all is the condition of his body," said Dr. Holtzman. "You'd expect him to suffer some physical wear and tear from constant wakefulness, but he does not.

"In fact, he seems to be ageless, with the heart and lung function of a man of 30 or so — which indicates he's actually benefitting from not sleeping.

"Should we learn his secret, it might be possible for all of us to go without sleep — adding years to our lives and cramming much more experience into every day."

BLABBERMOUTH PARROT IS KEY WITNESS IN DIVORCE TRIAL!

STAR WITNESS Bozo testified in Mr DeGambos' adultery...

By BEATRICE DEXTER

SALTA, Argentina — Angry wife Roseli DeGambos got a family insider to testify in her divorce trial — a blabbermouth parrot named Bozo!

The star witness spilled all the family secrets in his two-hour appearance before the court, and Mrs. DeGambos, 47, got her divorce.

"I knew he'd seen everything that my husband Carlos did when my back was turned," Mrs. DeGambos said in an interview about her bizarre divorce court ploy. "And I knew he had the vocabulary to describe what he'd witnessed.

"My lawyer thought at first it was a ridiculous idea to call in Bozo, but he doesn't know Bozo like I do."

Incredibly, the 14-year-old cockatoo answered questions and identified photos during his testimony before Judge Manuel Aguirre in a civil court here. According to press accounts, the bird tended to repeat himself but presented convincing proof that his master, a businessman, had been unfaithful.

The stool pigeon parrot described three "pretty chicks" that Carlos, 52, had "tickled" while his wife was away. He also identified the women in photographs, calling them by their correct names.

"I used to think that Carlos was a faithful husband but Bozo let me know about a year ago that something was up when I wasn't home," Mrs. DeGambos

Sure enough, in sworn statements, the feathered witness squawked out secret after secret. Shown one picture of a 21-year-old [illegible] mused on his cage, she just giggled. Honeybun, I love you." When Mrs DeGambos' attorney asked the bird, "Who loves Carlos?" the winged witness said, "Ruby loves Carlos, Ruby loves her baby." Ruby is DeGambos' young and voluptuous secretary.

At one point the bird's testimony even indicated that there were problems between the DeGambos. When shown a picture of Mrs. DeGambos, he said, "Pretty birdie, pretty bird ie," and "Not tonight, honey."

"It's an outrageous insult to my client that this bird-brained witness should be called to testify against him before the court," said Carlos DeGambos' lawyer, Jorge Lleas.

Judge Aguirre, who granted Mrs DeGambos her divorce, overruled the attorney's objections and let Bozo's testimony stand, the first such ruling in the world, legal experts say.

Stunned doctor confirms incredible hair growth!

BAKING SODA CURED MY BALDNESS!

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Bald businessman Marc Gillon rubbed baking soda on his head and sprouted a full head of hair!

"I know it sounds crazy but just look at me — I've got more hair than I know what to do with," said the 32-year old man. "Before baking soda, I tried every baldness cure there is and none of them worked. Then I read an old book on folk remedies that said baking soda thickens hair.

"I laughed it off at first but then decided what the Hell.

"I mixed baking soda with warm water and rubbed it on my scalp every day for two weeks.

"One day I noticed some soft brown fuzz on my head. I was very excited and continued to use baking soda and my hair just kept on growing.

"My friends couldn't believe it and neither could my doctor. He's writing up the story for a medical journal.

Dr. Christian Mutant confirmed that Gillon used to be bald but now has plenty of hair. He has no explanation for the man's new hair growth.

But he urges those using baking soda sometimes complained of a bad odor that went away after a few days.

"It's just a myth that baldness runs in families," said the physician.

Baking soda is very alkaline and most hairs removed layers of dead skin from the scalp.

That alone would make hair grow.

BEFORE Marc as he appeared on his work ID card

AFTER Marc Gillon shows off his thick head of hair

By JANE COLDEN

The procedure is quick and painless and requires no more than a few minutes per day.

"I'm very happy my hair might fall out."

"Would it work for someone else?" I really don't know. All I can say is that Mr. Gillon has hair for the first time in years.

Experts warn that baldness is caused by a number of factors and baking soda may not work for everyone.

"I'd stop my hair might fall out."

...enough. I don't like being bald so I'm not going to take a chance."

MEDICAL WARNING: Do not attempt to apply anything other than certified hair or skin care products to your head without first consulting a doctor.

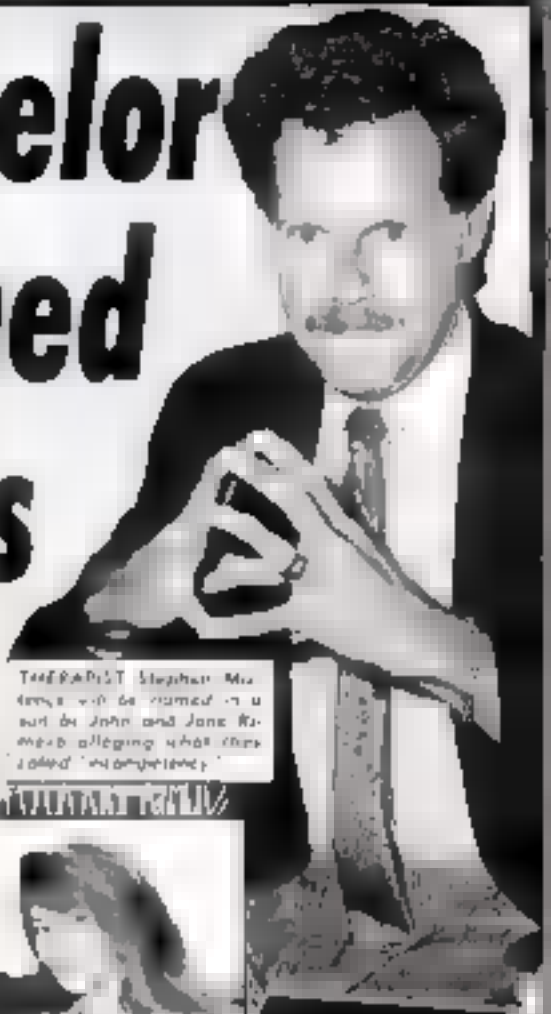
Marriage counselor from HELL ruined our lives . . . says New York couple!



THERAPIST Stephen Mistence will be named in suit by John and Jane Rizzero alleging what they called "incompetency"

He was told to quit his job & beat his wife!

She was told to have affairs with other men!

HUSBAND-wife team Rizzero became violent after he and wife followed Dr. Mistence's advice and started going out with other men

By BEATRICE DEXTER (Weekly World News)

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — John Rizzero and his wife Jane say they took their troubled relationship to a therapist — and he turned out to be a marriage counselor from Hell!

The angry upstate New York couple are planning to sue Dr Stephen Mistence because he:

- Advised John to quit his job and spend more time at home undermining their financial well being and increasing tensions in their marriage.
- Instructed Jane to "relax her standards" and learn to enjoy love affairs with other men, bringing on a crisis when John became insanely jealous.
- Told Jane she was "too fat and sloppy" and needed to shape up before anyone could love her, sending her into profound depression, low self esteem and health problems.
- Advised John to "be masterful" with his bride and dish out "physical reminders" if she didn't behave, causing violence in the marriage and leaving them with hundreds of dollars in medical expenses.

Dr Mistence refused to comment on their charges.

"The guy is just some ugly incompetent and he nearly ruined our marriage," said John, 34, an unemployed data processing consultant.

"When Jane and I went to him we had ordinary marital problems. Now we are in therapy four times a week, I'm out of work, Jane has an eating disorder and neither of us has any self confidence. Dr Mistence messed around [illegible] he doesn't hurt anybody else."

According to the couple, their troubles began in 1992, two years after they married. Jane became depressed when she had difficulty becoming pregnant and the two began to fight with increasing frequency.

When a friend suggested they see a marriage counselor, the couple made an appointment to see Dr Mistence, a psychologist.

"From after a while he sat real back and started [illegible] been to counseling before," John said. "We listened to everything he said because we figured he was the expert — and we were paying a lot for his advice.

"Then after a while he started telling us to do things that upset either of us. But we obeyed him and he didn't listen and we told him his advice wasn't working."

After more than a year of therapy, the young couple say they were in such bad shape they quit going to Dr Mistence's advice was [illegible] was almost too late, they say.

"We're determined to keep our marriage together but it's been really, really difficult," John said. "The problems Dr Mistence caused are going to haunt us for years.

"He's a terrible counselor and he shouldn't be allowed to practice. That's why we are going to take him to court.

Prospector gets dying wish — he's stuffed and mounted on the wall!

When his sickly sidekick Colin passed away in the jungles of Brazil, grieving gold prospector Patrick McDermott conscientiously carried out his dying wish. He stuffed his old buddy and mounted him on their cabin wall.

"That's the way he wanted it and that's what I did," sad-hearted Patrick, 42, told police in the town of Talbet nos.

"Colin kept telling me, 'When I go Patrick, don't bury me. Skin me, stuff me and hang me up there on the wall.

"He begged me to do it and I did it."

Irish-born Patrick and his 36-year-old crony Colin Hearne had been digging for gold in the wilds of Brazil for more than two years when a deadly fever came down with a mysterious ailment that sapped his strength.

He knew he was dying, but he wouldn't let me take him to a doctor," Patrick revealed from his jail cell. "He never did like doctors. And he never went for the idea of being stuck underground, either.

"He knew I could do it because I worked in a taxidermist's shop back in Dublin in '72 or '73. I stuffed those other animals back at our cabin and Colin thought they looked just fine.

Patrick's attorney says he has a good chance of avoiding prison. He's a political ally of Brazilian president Fernando Collor, who is popular with the country's rural voters.

Idiots can't vote in Iowa — but lawmaker plans change!

DES MOINES, Iowa — Idiots hate to be called idiots and you could hurt a criminal's feelings by saying he committed an "infamous crime."

That's the opinion of Iowa Senator Paul Hasmussen, who wants the state Legislature to spend valuable time and taxpayer dollars on an amendment to the state Constitution that would change the wording of a section that prohibits idiots from voting in Iowa elections.

Sen. Hasmussen would like to see that idiots be described as citizens who are "mentally incompetent to vote" and not as people "convicted of infamous crimes."

VIRGIN MARY STATUE MOUNTAIN & SPEAKS!

8:45 A.M.

FAITHFUL CROWD watches Virgin Mary statue shown in hallowed hill pray in full above them. Its signs of movement. At this point the figure is stone-cold still

By MARGARET STONE

BALLINSPITTLE, Ireland — True believers are flocking to the local Grotto of the Virgin Mary where hundreds of eye-witnesses claim to have seen a marble statue of the Holy Mother move and speak like a living woman.

What's more, the statue has warned on at least four occasions that Christ is returning to Earth soon and the end of the world is near.

Proof of the miracle is evident—as has been provided by a photographer who snapped pictures of the statue's three-foot figure walking along a pathway near the grotto.

"Hundreds and hundreds of people have seen the floating Virgin. Many heard her message that the End Times are here," said Father Bill Hannon, priest at nearby parish.

"When she chooses to speak her voice is clear and strong. She says: 'Let there be peace among all men who have ears to hear and eyes to see. The Kingdom of Heaven is fast upon you. Christ will return soon. The end of the world is near.'

"When the reports first came that we had normal people thought there had been an panic reaction or something that was causing the statue to shift.

"But after so many people watched the Virgin move out of the grotto and then come back again, we realized they were witnessing a miracle."

Father Hannon says the first statue sighting occurred last October 26 when a young woman visited the grotto early in the morning and found it empty.

Minutes later, she saw a robed figure emerge from the bushes and move slowly down a path adjacent to the grotto.

The woman looked more closely and was stunned to realize that she was watching the statue come to life.

"The woman said the Virgin spoke to her and then returned to the cave," said Father Hannon.

"The figure then resumed the pose of a statue and became perfectly still. When the lady told people what she had seen, nobody believed her at first. But the Holy Mother has repeated

YOUR PERSONALITY TRAITS ARE LINKED TO FINGERNAIL SHAPE!

By TANYA BRODER

Beauty Board Editor

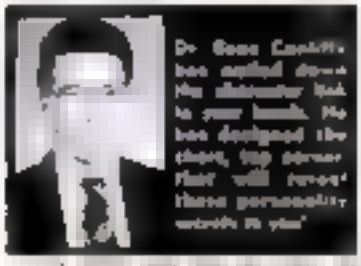
Just as your eyes are windows into your soul, your fingernails can provide pointers to your personality!

In an exciting study recently completed, 6,000 men and women were examined by doctors and given psychological tests. The combined results, as interpreted and published by French dermatologist Rene Cunliffe, give us a fascinating look at the 10 fingernail shapes and what they mean.

"Palm readers have observed hands for centuries and come up with amazingly accurate personality profiles," Dr. Cunliffe notes. "And since chiropractic doctors have known that the nails can be markers of an underlying organic imbalance.

"But this is the first time a study has combined physical evidence from of fingernail shape with scientifically accepted personality tests."

To gain insight into yourself and those close to you, examine the subject's fingernails carefully and compare them to the shapes on the chart above. Then use the number on the chart to see what the nails reveal in the descriptions below.



Dr. Rene Cunliffe has applied down-the-nose look to your hands. He has developed the chart, top above that will reveal these personality secrets in you!

1. Short, fat nails are often seen on go-getters who crave physical activity. If this is your shape, you're also decisive, sometimes to the point of being objectionable. Try to see others' points of view.

2. Your square or rectangular nails are a sign of a person who has high standards — and demands the same from those around them. You are even-tempered, and can be slow to change. Expect a long marriage.

3. If your nails are wide you have a quick temper but find it easy to forgive and forget. You are strong as an ox and rarely sick. Yet, for some, a more delicate appearance is irresistible.

4. Your narrow nails are dainty and somewhat fragile just like you. But what you lack in brute strength you make up for with supercharged energy. You have great wit and are very creative.

5. If you were born with shell-shaped fingernails you have a sensitive nature. You are loyal and trustworthy. A natural leader, you're an inspiration in tough times.

6. No matter what the shape of your nails are tapered like (above, see) you're on top. Some people say that you're proud and aloof, but with a warmer approach. Your friends think you're pretty great. You have a superior IQ and pursuing abilities.

7. Gracefully almond-shaped nails are typical of those with an appreciation and love for beauty. You are loyal and honest and look for these qualities in others. It takes a lot to get you angry. Members of the opposite sex are attracted to your strong personality.

8. If your nails are shaped like footballs . . . [illegible] getting out of bed in the morning! But that's just part of your easy-going temperament. Try getting more exercise to boost your energy level. You are very creative and enjoyable [illegible]

9. Nails curved like spoons may signal circulation or glandular conditions, or a nutritional deficiency. A medical examination is in order. Your body's needs may be caused by a chemical imbalance.

10. Rounded nails that curve with age diminish strongly with aging individuals but this is also a sign of illness and may indicate a heart or respiratory condition. This shape on the index finger calls for attention to your health.

Match your nails to this chart

HAND DOWN: Compare your fingernails with descriptions that go with shapes. Then match the shape to the chart above. Fill numbers on the chart match up with the numbers in the description.

SATAN WORSHIPPER Yolanda Robles, 178, says she owes her long life to the Devil

'The Devil said I'd live [redacted] years if I spread his word,' says [redacted] born in 1819

By TANYA BROOKS, Weekly World News

MEXICO CITY — A Devil worshipper who claims to be 178 years old has been tested by doctors — who agree that she was born on February 9, 1819!

"There is no doubt about her age," Dr Francisco Melendez said in an article in the science journal Mexican Geriatrics. "Analysis of the woman's teeth and comparison of her hair with a lock of hair that was snipped in her infancy prove that she is 178 years old.

"She appears to be in her 60s and her mind is sharp. She attributes her longevity and good health to Satan. Frankly, we don't know what to make of it.

"Our plans are to study her diet and home environment to see if we can discover why she has lived so long."

The woman, Yolanda Robles, insists that doctors are wasting their time looking for a medical explanation. Dr Melendez said she says Satan promised her a long life when she began to worship him in 1830 at the age of 11.

"She insists the Devil said she'd live 150 years if she spread his word,' the expert on aging said. "She says she has work to do and he is giving her the time to it.

"She tells people that Satan is not evil, that he is good. And she feels it's her duty to spread his message and show all people the truth. She preaches that Satan is life and that she's living proof of it."

Dr Francisco Melendez

Oddly enough, Mrs. Robles lived in obscurity until she visited a clinic to have a splinter removed from her foot in early May.

Doctors reportedly thought she was joking when she gave her age as 178. But she was so insistent that they asked Dr Melendez to verify her age. He has since enlisted the help of other experts, including a number of American psychiatrists and specialists in aging, to help him in his study of the woman.

Dr Melendez says his examination has shown that Mrs. Robles was most likely middle aged when America's Civil War was fought in the 1860s -- and an elderly woman when the Wright brothers flew their plane at Kitty Hawk in 1903.

Mrs Robles claims to have outlived 15 husbands, the last of whom died in 1993, he said.

"The woman doesn't have a birth certificate, but she does have marriage licenses for 11 of her husbands dating back to 1863," Dr Melendez said.

"And her recollections of history are nothing short of remarkable.. probably because she actually lived it."

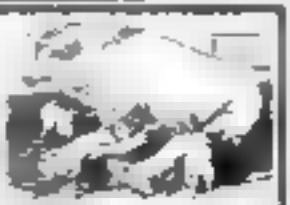
Farmer jailed for animal abuse — because he fed his pigs garbage!

KOPING, Sweden — Flabbergasted farmer Carl Landkis was jailed for animal abuse — because he fed his pigs garbage.

Landkis was accused of violating the country's strict animal-rights laws by failing to feed his 13 oinkers a properly balanced diet.



"Pigs love left-over garbage," Landkis said after his release on bail. "Pigs have been eating garbage since the days of the Roman Empire. I know from experience it's never hurt them."

Prosecutors plan to try the flustered farmer on charges levied after an animal-rights advocate saw

SPENDS 3 MINUTES IN HEAVEN — WITH HER DEAD HUSBAND!

LOVING husband Harry Heineman

Now she wants to go BACK . . . and be with her beloved forever!

WIDOW Margaret Heineman can't wait to be

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Margaret Heineman is living for the day she dies and joins her late husband Harry in Heaven — for the second time!

The 73-year-old widow was with her beloved mate when both were involved in a horrible car wreck. The elderly pair were both brought in the hospital without a pulse, but doctors revived Margaret.

To this day, the former schoolteacher can clearly remember the moment of her death and her hand in hand trip to Heaven with Harry.

"We were so happy there together but it only lasted for a few minutes," the Bern, Switzerland, woman said in an article for her church paper.

"Then the next thing I remember is waking up in the emergency room rocked by pain.

"Now I have to live my last days alone without Harry. We were married for 51 years. I can't feel complete without him."

Her gray-haired grandmother of five had her astonishing near-death experience took place July 23, 1995, after the elderly couple were grievously injured in a head-on collision outside of Bern.

Harry died instantly of a broken neck and head injuries. His wife died, too, just as an ambulance rushed her into the emergency room.

"The doctors told me I was brought in without a pulse," the frail old lady said. "They said I had some head injuries and bleeding. They said it took them about three minutes to get my pulse back and stop the hemorrhaging.

"I don't remember any of that. But what I do remember best is like a beautiful vision. I was lying on the stretcher and I saw Harry come to me. The next thing I knew I was floating above my body, holding hands with my husband.

"The two of us walked toward a brilliant white light. Feelings enveloped us. We came to a lovely place where our dead son Anders waited for us. We were told we happen to be at 'crossroads'."

Although she wanted to stay with her husband, Margaret was ordered back to life because there was still a journey ahead for her, one filled with sorrow and heartache.

She refused to let her return from a heaven and a disappointment, but the brave grandmom says she believes it was God's will.

That's the only thing that's keeping me going without Harry," the woman told a reporter for the Bulletin Church Bulletin in her hometown. "I pray that I can serve Him in the way He wants and that He will let me remain in Heaven soon to be with Harry."

DEATH HAS THE LAST LAUGH!

It seems some people are just plain doomed. If you don't believe it, consider these weird deaths:

● A fierce gust of wind blew 45-year-old Vittorio Luise's car into a river near Naples, Italy. He managed to break a window, climb out and swim to shore — where a tree blew over and killed him.

● Mike Stewart, 31, of Dallas was filming a movie on the dangers of low-level bridges when the truck he was standing on passed under a low-level bridge — killing him.

● Walter Hallas, a 58-year-old store clerk in Leeds, England, was so afraid of dentists that he asked a fellow worker to try to cure his toothache by punching him in the jaw. The punch caused Hallas to fall down, hitting his head, and he died of a fractured skull.

● George Schwartz, owner of a factory in Providence, R.I., narrowly escaped death when a blast flattened his factory except for one wall. After treatment for minor injuries, he returned to the scene to search for files. The remaining wall then collapsed on him, killing him instantly.

● Depressed since he could not find a job, 42-year-old Romolo Riboli sat in his kitchen near Pisa, Italy, with a gun in his hand threatening to kill himself. His wife pleaded for him not to do it, and after about an hour he burst into tears and threw the gun to the floor. It went off and killed his wife.

● A woman in Lake Kushaqua, N.Y., was laid out in her coffin, presumed dead of heart disease. As mourners watched, she suddenly sat up — and her daughter dropped dead of fright.

● A man hit by a car in New York got up uninjured, but lay back down in front of the car when a bystander told him in pretend he was hurt so he could collect insurance money. The car rolled forward and crushed him to death.

World's first toilet-trained dog drowns in john

MEXICO CITY — Wimpy the wonder dog was so talented he taught himself to use the toilet when nature called — and even flushed away the evidence when he was finished.

But the joyful pooch met his Maker the day he toppled into the bowl, got clobbered on the head by the toilet seat cover — and drowned!

"Poor old Wimpy he was just too old and weak to save himself," said his adoring owner Fernando Perez.

"Apparently he was sitting on the toilet doing his business and fell in. Then got hit on the head by the toilet seat as he flailed around trying to get out. My wife and I found him near dead in the bowl and we could tell it was too late to save him.

"It was the saddest moment of my life because Wimpy was really a great dog.

The amazing English sheepdog-Spanish Mackenzie hunt-alike became an instant sensation as celebrity in 1989 when World News dubbed him the world's "first" potty trained pup.

"Those puppies are so stubborn that when we first said Wimpy he'd just look at us with disdain as I tried to teach him any kind of trick," chattered Fernando excitedly.

"But when he was maybe a year old, he started following me into the bathroom and taking a real interest in everything I did in there — especially when I sat on the john. He'd stand there turning his head from side to side, never taking his eyes off me.

"Then one day I came home and found him perched up there on the commode doing his thing just like he'd been using the toilet all his life."

Within a week, flabbergasted Fernando did not realize the stubborn hound 'n flush after he was finished.

"He was quite proud of himself, especially after newspapers started running his story and we got on TV a couple of times," the doting pet shop owner told a reporter. "He'd was hop there on that toilet."

But nevertheless Wimpy succeeded the throne for the final time June 5 and his sad-eyed master says he doesn't know if he can ever bring himself to replace his defunct deputy.

Wimpy was caught in years on which is real old for a bulldog — so he led a good full life," replied Fernando said.

"But any dog I get now just won't be the same — because he won't know how to use the toilet on any time."

STRESSED-OUT SINGLES ARE SICK OF DATING!

Many men and women are so disillusioned with dating that they're suffering from "dating burnout," say experts.

"In time, dating becomes a [illegible] for some people — they reach a point where they can no longer face [illegible]," declared Dr. Herbert Freudenberger, psychoanalyst and author of the book Burnout.

"They [illegible] tired of always having to be 'up' for dates, trying to act charming and enthusiastic even when they're not in the mood.

"And they become weary of dressing up for each new date and worrying about their appearance. What's more, dating can be emotionally draining when an individual has to keep trying to draw out the other person. It takes a lot of energy to keep a conversation going.

"Dating burnout is a growing phenomenon. We're seeing more cases all the time."

Psychologist Dr. Gary Emery said: "While dating at first is exciting and interesting, it becomes tedious and lackluster.

"Daters grow disillusioned at meeting one person after another who's boring, crass or conceited. They also grow weary of relating their life history to one new date after another.

"The psychological price to pay for dating eventually becomes too high — and dating burnout sets in."

To combat dating burnout, the experts suggested that before you go out on a date, try to get to know the person first — through a lengthy phone conversation, for example. Be more selective in who you date. Be sure you and your prospective date have something in common. Don't accept a date just so you'll have something to do.

Try going out for lunch or coffee together before accepting a night out. And when you do go on a date, don't agree to do something you know you won't enjoy just because that's what your date wants to do.

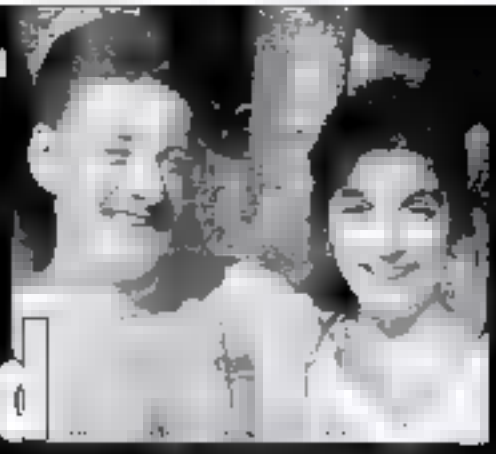
Hubby beats murder rap — after wife testifies from beyond the grave!



SO IN LOVE Francisco and Lupe Duarte posed for this photo during their honeymoon. A freak gun accident killed Lupe just 10 months later

By ROBERT CUNNINGHAM

MENDOZA, Argentina — Accused murderer Francisco Duarte was found not guilty following a sensational trial — after his victim testified on his behalf from beyond the grave!

Francisco, 31, was acquitted in June of the shooting death of his wife Lupe on the strength of written messages that a famed psychic says she received from the woman's spirit.

"We never had any right between us," the spirit of Lupe wrote through medium Francisco Xaviera. "We were so happy. Neither of us knew how the pistol we went off."

FAMED PSYCHIC Consuelo Xaviera contacted Lupe

And the prosecuting attorney in the case declared: "I have no doubt that the jury's decision was based on the spirit messages."

Francisco was tried for murdering his wife of 10 months on March 10, 1987. The businessman testified that his gun accidentally went off as he was getting it down from its hiding place on the top of his wardrobe.

"My wife was seated on our bed and the pistol went right into her neck. I rushed her to the hospital, but she died after four days in a coma."

Prosecutors, who say Francisco killed his wife in a jealous rage, refused to believe that he nearly went mad with grief. (Though witnesses do testify he had a violent temper.)

To ease the anguish Francisco went to see Consuelo, a medium famed for getting into trances and allowing spirits to use her hand to write their messages from beyond the grave.

Consuelo said she would be receiving messages from spirits that night and that I should attend the session, Francisco said.

The psychic did not think Francisco was involved in Lupe's death, but that evening Consuelo received a message from Lupe that referred to her shooting death and attached. "I was an accident. Please believe it." Consuelo later received three more messages from Lupe.

The messages contained detailed references to events, names and places which only Lupe could know, said an investigator. "And they were written in the same handwriting as Lupe's."

Francisco showed the messages to his lawyers and they decided to present them as evidence on his behalf at his murder trial.

"The messages really backed up our client's testimony," defense attorney Rolando Briguetti said. "We entered them as evidence and they were read in court. What this means is that Lupe, the victim, was actually testifying in court on her husband's behalf ... even though she was dead and buried."

Even prosecuting attorney Justo Paz realized that the spirit's messages left him without a case. "I could only accept them as being authentic, proving the defendant's innocence," he said. "The messages left our case very weak."

Top 5 reasons guys & gals have bad moods

LOS ANGELES — PMS and marital spats are the top two causes of bad moods in women — but men are more likely to be driven up the wall by slow-moving traffic and criticism from their bosses.

These are the surprising findings of a head-shrinking study by noted psychologist Dr. Emily Platt.

Dr. Platt asked 100 married couples to name, in order, the top five things that cause them to lose their temper.

Here's the breakdown according to gender:

WOMEN:	MEN:
(1) PMS	(1) Slow-moving traffic.
(2) Marital arguments.	(2) Getting chewed out by the boss
(3) Bad weather	(3) Getting bad service
(4) Trying to do too much.	(4) Marital arguments.
(5) Whining kids	(5) Financial woes.

BIRD LOVER SENTENCED TO DIE FOR KILLING CAT!

SINGAPORE — A bird lover was sentenced to be hanged for beating a cat to death with a board.

Tan Kok Shiang, 34, admitted killing the stray cat because it was bothering his pet parakeet. The Singapore District Court handed down the death sentence after a neighbor testified he heard the cat cry and saw Tan hitting the animal repeatedly with the heavy board.

Two months earlier, the court's chief justice sent a dog beater to jail for 30 years.

Mom rapes 9-year-old son & lets boyfriend rape her 13-year-old daughter

By JACK ALEXANDER Daily News Staff

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — A woman who raped her 9-year-old son and watched as her boyfriend repeatedly raped her 13-year-old daughter got an incredibly lenient eight-month jail sentence.

Victims' rights activists and lawyers were outraged when Judge Alfred Swersky gave Nita Brown a measly 3-year sentence and then suspended all but eight months of it.

"When a parent violates her own child the way she did, she should be severely punished," said angry Assistant Commonwealth Atty Molly Fine.

"She has a responsibility to her children to protect them and care for them."

Judge Swersky didn't explain his leniency but defense lawyer Blake Wolcott pointed out that Mrs. Brown was abused as a child and didn't have access to professional counseling.

Mrs. Brown's son is confined to a mental facility.

"She will be serving eight months while the victim, unfortunately, will be serving a life sentence," said crime victims' advocate David Beatty.

Boyfriend Darrell Johnson, 34, will have to serve only 15 months in prison for raping and sodomizing the teenage girl, who was impregnated during the attacks in 1992.

BERN, Switzerland — Is there a space alien in your family tree?

Experts have provided Weekly World News with tips on spotting your E.T. ancestors.

"We believe there are millions of people around the world who have space aliens among their recent ancestors and don't even realize it," said famed Swiss UFO researchers August Piccard and Dr. Hans Wilke in their exciting new book Worlds Above, Worlds Beyond.

They advise us to think back to the things we know about our grandparents or great grandparents. If many of the conditions below apply to one of them, there is a good chance that person was indeed born on another planet.

● Did your grandparents reveal details that later came true?

● Did they have a history of unexplained absences? Did they go away for weeks or months at a time without telling anyone where they were, then refuse to discuss these absences later?

● Did they eat strange foods — like mushrooms or creamed asparagus or bananas and chocolate sauce — in the middle of the night?

● Did they display unusual psychic abilities?

● Did they act childish at times — enjoying games like marbles?

● Were they unusually generous giving an extravagant degree amount of time or money to charity or civic projects? Were they willing to work extraordinarily hard to improve life on Earth?

● Did they seem to lead a charmed life, winning contests with seldom having bad luck? Did they somehow seem to get money out of thin air?

● Did they indulge dangerous situations when it seemed that no one else would?

● Did they seldom talk about their family history or background?

● Did they speak of strange beings and claim to converse with spirits?

How to tell if your man is really happy!

You can tell if your man is really happy by learning how to read his inner feelings, say two experts.

By KELLY TURNER

Weekly World News

"Men don't reveal their true feelings as easily as women do, so be alert to subtle clues that indicate dissatisfaction with his job, your relationship or life in general," said Dr. Michael McGill. "Look for the slightest changes in his behavior to be aware of lessening love." Does he want more sex or less?

If he seems to be changing, watch and learn how things are going. Don't measure his approval by your own. Men are far less emotional than women are.

"If you expect him to show his happiness in the same way you do, you'll be disappointed," said Dr. McGill, a behaviorist.

Teach your man to open up about his feelings. Sometimes you can do that by being open about your own feelings, said clinical psychologist David Tarkan.

Don't confuse his dedication with workaholism. It may appear a man puts his job ahead of his family, but that may not be the case. It's simply easier for many men to measure professional success than success with their family.

"For example, a man knows he's a top-notch salesman by the bottom line figures that prove it," said Dr. McGill. But he may not fully know that he's a super husband and great father unless you tell him.

"So don't automatically assume your

Scientists breed half man, half mouse

TOKYO — In an astonishing scientific breakthrough, Japanese [redacted] have successfully transplanted huge chunks of human DNA into mice embryos — creating man/mouse hybrids with distinctly human traits!

The playful rodents, nicknamed "humans," each have about 1,000 human genes and display enhanced intelligence estimated to be close to that of a 6-year-old child.

"This is a great leap forward for science," declared Dr Shigaru Ohimori, who reported on the research in a leading Japanese medical journal.

Previously researchers have been able to insert one or two human genes into mice, but the Japanese team is the first ever to add an entire human chromosome. Incredibly, the genes functioned normally and were even passed on to [redacted] creatures' offspring.

Weekly World News

Geneticist Dr Kazuma Tomoyasu and his colleagues at the research laboratories of the Kirin Co. pulled off the medical marvel by fusing genetic material from human skin cells with cells taken from mice.

These hybrid cells were then injected into developing mouse embryos, which were implanted in the wombs of female mice.

Most of the newborns "humsters" looked normal. But some had tiny mouthlike hands, mouthlike breasts resembling those of a human female and floppy, upturned noses instead of snouts.

Dr Tomoyasu and his colleagues took the bold step of transplanting a chromosome believed to be responsible for the structure of the human brain.

"The result is that the cerebral cortex of the mice is highly developed and they are remarkably intelligent," noted Dr Ohimori. "They've been able to learn how to unlatch their cages and on several occasions have nearly escaped the facilities. Early on they get bored with running around on the exercise wheel and have come up with their own intricate games, such as a version of tag researchers dubbed 'cat and mouse.'

"They've even developed their own simple currency, using bits of straw broken to a specific length to trade with each other for food, water and sexual favors."

Scientists hope their work in interspecies gene splicing will soon make it possible to use mice to mass produce human proteins effective against diseases.

Jupiter's moon is teeming with life!

Europa, one of the planet Jupiter's 16 moons, is teeming with life, say excited scientists.

They reached that astonishing conclusion after studying what they call "mind-blowing" new photos taken by the unmanned Galileo space probe and beamed back to Earth.

The shots reveal vast oceans covered with a layer of ice ranging from one to 40 miles thick. Beneath the ice is a murky red-brown sea in which, experts now believe, primitive life forms exist.

At a recent news conference in Pasadena, Calif., a group of scientists announced that they are confident micro-organisms can be found in Europa's ocean. "I am sure there is life there," declared University of Washington scientist John Delaney.

Geologist Michael Carr of the U.S. Geological Survey agreed. "It looks as though we found the smoking gun that points to the subsurface ocean."

Scientists have long believed that the basic elements required for the evolution of life are water, heat and pre-organic compounds. And recent discoveries made by Galileo suggest that Europa is rich in all three.

The new photos indicate that only the surface of the alien moon's oceans are frozen solid — the rest is flowing, liquid water. "If that's true, then Europa has more water than is contained in all of Earth's oceans," said Richard Terrile, a planetary scientist at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Soaring up the surface of the ocean shows that it has been tunneled in the past by meteorites and comets — both of which are rich storehouses of the chemicals necessary for the formation of life.

Terrile said he believes material from meteorites and comets formed a sediment on the bottom of the ocean and that out of the sediment organic life has evolved — life similar to microbes here on Earth.

The water, he said, is probably like "bouillon."

Europa, which is about a quarter the size of Earth, also appears to have a rocky, molten core that generates volcanic heat — just the kind of heat needed to get life cooking in the seas of the far off alien world.

The scientists are stunned by how Earth-like Europa is. It even has giant icebergs which slowly make their way through the frozen seas, propelled by underwater currents.

"We're intrigued by these blocks of ice, similar to those seen on Earth's polar seas during spring-time thaws," said Ronald Greeley an Arizona State University geologist and a member of the Galileo imaging team.

Scientists now hope to send a robot craft to Europa to penetrate the ice and search for life.

THE FIVE GREATEST BIBLE MYSTERIES

2,000-year-old secrets of

What really happened to Adam & Eve!

How Jesus walked on water!

The true source of manna from Heaven!

How Jesus fed the multitudes!

Noah's miraculous [illegible] — revealed!

The Good Book revealed by Bible experts!

WASHINGTON — How did Noah get breeding pairs of all the Earth's animals into a single boat? Where did manna come from? How did Jesus feed 5,000 people with five loaves of bread and two fishes? How was Christ able to walk on water? And what REALLY happened to Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden?

These great Bible mysteries, which have baffled Christians for over 2,000 years, have finally been solved by Bible experts who concluded after a five-year study that "God's ways, though often mysterious, are sometimes crystal clear."

"And in the cases of these Bible miracles, there is no mystery at all. All we have to do is open our eyes. The solutions really are there for everyone to see."

Dr. James Roadis, Bernadette Carter, Phillip Gaylor, Dr. Margaret Crouse and Dr. Robert Stella headed up the panel of Bible scholars, theologians and clergymen who examined the mysteries in light of the historical record and current scientific thinking and provided a solution for each of them.

"Our conclusions will seem controversial to some, but they are in no way meant to diminish God's power and supremacy over everything that was, is and will be," explained Mrs. Carter.

"The fact is, in His divine wisdom, God has given us the intelligence and consciousness to understand many of the things He does.

"I'm certainly not trying to imply that we are gods ourselves — I get down on my knees and pray to the Lord every day of my life.

"I'm saying that God has given us ears to hear, eyes to see and the intelligence to understand the world around us.

"And the world around us includes the miracles He chooses to provide for us."

WORLD NEWS EXCLUSIVE

By NICK MANN

Here are the experts' explanations for five great Bible mysteries:

1 How Noah got breeding pairs of every animal on Earth into a single boat. The solution, say the experts, is simple if you look beyond artists' conceptions of the event that we have all seen over the years.

"Noah filled the ark mostly with babies and eggs that took up less space and required less food than adult animals," said Dr. Roadis.

"It is also safe to assume that the Great Flood, though extensive, didn't cover the entire Earth as many people believe.

"In the Aramaic that the Bible was originally written in, the story of Noah describes the Flood as covering 'the world,' which, when accurately translated, simply means the Middle East.

"So in point of fact, Noah only loaded local animals onto the ark — not every animal on the planet."

2 Where manna came from. While searching for the Promised Land, Moses and his followers faced great trials and tribulations — including the threat of starvation.

They survived the worst of times eating manna from Heaven — a sugary bread-like substance that "fell from Heaven."

In fact, as the experts point out, manna is produced by plants indigenous to the region the group was exiled in. The miracle, of course, is that the plants produced ENOUGH manna to feed thousands of people.

"Outside of a single miraculous incident, this is unheard of," said Gaylor. "It truly is a miracle of the first magnitude."

3 How Jesus managed to feed 5,000 with five loaves of bread and two fishes.

"This is the easiest of all the miracles in the Bible to explain, but the most difficult to comprehend and accept," said Dr. Crouse. "Jesus clearly had an intuitive grasp of human nature and psychology. And when the multitudes appeared to be without food, He knew better.

"In those days, most people traveled with a small supply of food. Jesus knew that many of the people in the crowd had something to eat, but didn't want others to know for fear of having to share with them.

"By taking the few loaves and fishes and passing them around in a basket, He was setting an example for others to share.

"By the time the basket had been passed through the crowd, everyone had had something to eat — with plenty to spare. To me, this is the most beautiful — and perhaps the most stunning — of all the miracles in the Bible.

"To think that Christ could overcome human nature with a single gesture of goodwill is almost beyond comprehension."

4 How Jesus managed to walk on water. According to Gaylor, there are at least two men living in the world today who can — and do — walk on water.

They are Christian mystics who trained for years to open themselves to the power of God and allow Him to work miracles through them.

It is believed that Christ, being the son of God, was born with this ability — and used it to this awesome Bible miracle.

5 What REALLY happened to Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. The fact is, said Dr. Stella, Adam and Eve WEREN'T banished. By eating fruit from the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil, the world's first people merely learned to see the evil and misery around them.

"We STILL live in the Garden of Eden," said the expert. "The trick is to have such complete faith in God that we enable ourselves to see that everything is as He wants it to be — perfect in every way."

WORLD'S BIGGEST PRUDE!

CHASTE BEAUTY Mathilda Ghajaar has a strict list of dating rules her admirers must comply with.

Goody two-shoes gal won't:
- Stay out after dark!
- Hold hands on the first date!
- Go to a movie with dirty words!
- Kiss a guy for six months!

. . . AND SHE HAS A CERTIFICATE PROVING SHE'S STILL A VIRGIN!

By RACHEL LUX / Weekly World News

AMSTERDAM — Goody two-shoes Mathilda Ghajaar is the world's biggest prude, a 31-year-old bachelor gal who never holds hands on the first date — and has a framed certificate proving she's a virgin.

"I'm pure and proud of it," the shapely secretary told reporters for a women's magazine.

"I work in an office where the men seem to think if you go out on dates, you must be sleeping around. Well, I'm not sleeping with anybody, and I wanted to put an end to all their wisecracks and their knowing looks."

So exasperated Mathilda went to the doctor and got a fancy certificate vouching for her chastity — and making her the Netherlands' only official virgin.

"I enjoy going out with guys, but I want them to understand from the very beginning that I have rules."

and the straitlaced lady.

Among Mathilda's dictates for dates:

- Never stay out past dark on the first date.
- No touching, holding hands or slow dancing until the fourth date.
- No movies with nudity or dirty words.
- No rude or suggestive remarks at any time.
- No goodnight kisses until we've been together at least six months.

"But my most important rule is that I won't have sex with anyone until I'm married," said unsullied Mathilda. "I know it's an outmoded idea, but it's the right thing for me."

The belle picks and chooses her beaus carefully, but she insists she never has trouble finding interested guys.

"There are a lot of men out there with values like mine," she said.

And if a fellow gets a little frisky, old-fashioned Mathilda knows how to solve the problem. "I just take out my certificate and remind him I have rules."

After cops put a damper on their party, the couple dressed and tried to explain that they were celebrating the woman's birthday. The

Desperate mom tormented by visions of rotting corpses

'HORROR FILMS RUINED MY LIFE!'

By BEATRICE DEXTER / Weekly World News

TOKYO — A 32-year-old housewife and mother of three is suing filmmakers, claiming her life has been a wreck since she went to a horror movie festival last fall.

The woman says she consulted an attorney after an anxiety condition destroyed her marriage and put her heavily in debt. She complains of nightmares, terrifying flashbacks and nonstop dread caused by the frightening scenes she saw in scary movies.

"That horrible horror festival ruined my life," said Yukio Tanaka, who spoke to reporters from the office of her Tokyo attorney.

"Every time I try to sleep I awake screaming from nightmares. I need someone with me at all times just to feel safe in my own home. I've tried counseling and drugs and nothing helps.

"I want the people who made these films to pay for what they did to me."

Representatives of the filmmakers have not commented on her claims. But Mrs. Tanaka, who is now separated from her manufacturer husband, blames the makers of three films for her troubles. The films Gore Stalker, Creatures From a Nightmare and The Body Shredders, were screened at a small neighborhood theater during a week of horror spectaculars in October 1990.

The movie fan says she attended a total of 25 hours over a four-day period, and then noticed the films were having a powerful effect on her.

"I would rush home to my empty house and suffer from fear that something was hidden in my house," she recalled.

"Then I noticed that the effects were getting worse. I became so frightened of being alone I had to invite friends over to stay in the house with me."

When Mrs. Tanaka's condition continued to deteriorate, she was hospitalized for several weeks in a mental institution. Her husband left her, taking the children with him, and her fears drove her from her home. Today the suffering housewife lives alone in a small apartment, receiving daily psychiatric counseling and tranquilizers.

"I've begun having hallucinations that giant, rotting corpses are coming after me," says Mrs. Tanaka. "I can't go on like this."

NEIGHBOR'S GARAGE DOOR OPENER TURNS ON MAN'S SEX IMPLANT!

By JOE BERGER Weekly World News

ROSTOCK, Germany — Frantic pastor Frederic Naumann got a newfangled electronic penis implant to cure his impotence. And now, every time the neighbor lady uses her garage door opener, the minister's manhood leaps to attention!

"This remote-controlled implant is supposed to be the latest thing in space-age medicine, but it's driving me mad," fluttered Frederic, 32, told a European medical journal.

"I guess we're on the same radio frequency or something, because whenever Mrs. Grosmeyer next door opens up her garage, I suddenly feel myself standing straight and tall.

"That can be mortifying if I'm lying around the pool with friends, but it's even worse if I'm in front of the congregation delivering my Sunday sermon."

The embarrassed pastor's woes began three years ago when his penchant for pin-ups petered out.

"After 10 years of marriage and three kids, all of a sudden I couldn't cut the mustard anymore," said the hapless dad.

Reverend Frederic Naumann

"My wife Gerda and I are still very much in love, so it was heartbreaking for both of us. Finally I went to the doctor who told me about a new implant that could solve all my problems."

Frustrated Frederic had himself rigged up with one of the radio-controlled contraptions — and there quickly ensued his troubles and woes.

"There gave me a little transmitter thing with a button on it to keep in the bedroom, and they said when I wanted an erection I could just push on the button," the perturbed preacher told reporters. "But right off things started happing to attention whether I pushed the button or not. The first Sunday morning I had it, I was giving my sermon and whoops — there it went. I had to make a mad dash for the pulpit to get out of sight. Since then it's been going off two or three times a day, always in the worst situations imaginable. I'll be counseling some poor old lady or chatting with friends over the back fence and suddenly I'll find myself reacting in a most un-preacherly way."

Red-faced Frederic finally figured out that he was reacting to the occasion every time next-door neighbor Rita Grosmeyer, 59, used her garage door opener.

"She's a widow who lives right beside the rectory, and she must have the most powerful garage door opener in town," said the hapless pastor.

"She's not a member of our congregation, but I finally got up enough nerve to explain the problem to her.

"I thought it would be easier for her to adjust her door opener than for me to adjust my implant. But the old grouch told me to get my head out of the gutter — and then slammed the door in my face."

firemen smash through wall to free 15-month-old boy

Daring rescue saves toddler trapped in chimney!

By PAT WELLS, Weekly World News

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — Frantic firemen had to smash through the wall of a house to rescue toddler Conny Frosley — after he tumbled down an old chimney in his home.

The 15-month-old boy was with his mother as she cleaned the attic of their three-story home when he suddenly slipped into the unused chimney shaft and disappeared.

Hearing her baby's screams as he plunged down the shaft, horrified mom Mona peered down the chimney certain she would see him lying dead in the fireplace hearth two floors below.

But somehow Conny's body had gotten jammed in the 14-inch shaft at the second floor level.

The desperate mother raced downstairs and called the fire department for help.

In minutes firemen arrived, but no matter how hard they tugged, they couldn't pull the youngster free of his eerie prison.

As Conny's cries for help became more terrified, the rescuers began smashing a hole through the wall into the chimney.

They had to work carefully so they wouldn't accidentally dislodge little Conny and send him plummeting to the bottom of the shaft, but after three hours the hole was big enough for them to pull the boy free.

"We were very lucky," said fireman Christian Steenig. "Just as we broke through, a few of the bricks slipped into the shaft and dropped with a great clatter on the floor below.

"We had no way of knowing where this chimney ended in the Frosleys' basement because that part of the house had been closed off long ago.

"But we grabbed the little boy just in time and pulled him to safety."

Although he was covered with soot from head to toe, Conny suffered his harrowing ordeal uninjured. And after a hot bath and a good scrubbing from his mom, he was tucked into bed, as good as new.

Read how Satan will use Russia, Germany & China to start World War 3!

By ROBERT MORAN

VATICAN CITY — God delivers His final warning to sinners, giving them one last chance to repent. Satan appears to leaders in China, Germany and Russia, winning over followers who start World War III on his evil behalf. And finally, after centuries of speculation, the world does, in fact, come to an end on July 19, 2001!

Those are just a few of the chilling Bible prophecies that are just now being made public after remaining under lock and key in a Vatican vault for hundreds of years.

And no less a figure than Pope John Paul II decided to reveal the prophecies after concluding that "mankind must take immediate steps" to get right with God before global warfare and universal hatred touch off the final battle between good and evil — Armageddon — and bring about the end of the world.

"If you believe in God and trust His holy word, you already know in your heart that these prophecies are true," said one Vatican source.

"Time isn't running out. It has run out. The choice between salvation and damnation, quite clearly, is yours and mine to make."

The source of the prophecies will not be revealed until Pope John Paul II addresses the world in an unprecedented global radio broadcast in late October or early November.

But the source hinted that they were originally contained in the Bible's book of Revelations, which was penned by John, Christ's disciple.

The prophecies were apparently edited out of the original and hidden away at the Vatican in the 14th century because church leaders believed that they dealt with events too far in the future to serve as deterrents to sin.

Here, he continued, is the gist of the 10 prophecies Pope John Paul will reveal in his forthcoming radio address:

1 God sends dramatic signs and wonders to humanity to signal that the end of the world is near.

The signs include [illegible] cry of an herbal cancer cure in a Dead Sea cave and an unprecedented series of earthquakes and volcanic eruptions around the world.

2 The assassination of a powerful and beloved religious leader stuns the world next spring.

The loss to humanity is not only human-itarian. It paves the way for even greater satanic influence and evil in the world.

3 False messiahs and Anti-Christs crop up in strategic locations around the globe, winning hundreds of millions of well-intentioned but misguided people to their unholy cause.

4 Spiritual terrorists destroy thousands of churches and holy sites.

The persecution of Christians by individuals and atheistic governments forces true believers to hide "underground."

5 The sudden and stunning introduction of "national identification cards" in the [redacted] Western Europe next summer are, in fact, the "mark of the beast" mentioned on numerous occasions in the

...sweeps the U.S., killing millions of children under 12.

7 Reports of a "messiah" who brings dead people back to life are hailed as miracles from God. But the man responsible is a henchman of the Devil, the epitome of evil itself.

8 Satan steps up his efforts to win the hearts and minds of people around the world.

9 One billion people ascend into Heaven without dying on July 18, 2001, in fulfillment of the Biblical promise of a "rapture" in which true believers will be taken into Paradise before the world ends.

10 The final battle of World War III — Armageddon — begins on the morning of July 18, 2001.

Russia and Germany next fall. These leaders unwittingly do the Devil's will by attacking their geographical neighbors, touching off World War III.

The conflict ultimately concludes with the total annihilation of humanity — and the beginning of Heaven on Earth in fulfillment of God's master plan.

By SANDRA LEE

Heaven's Gate suicide mania is sweeping Japan in a big way. At last count more than 18,700 Japanese men, women and children have killed themselves so they could hitch a ride on a spaceship they believe is hidden behind the Hale-Bopp comet!

The largest of the mass suicides occurred Japan's in an area about 30 miles northwest of Tokyo, when more than 1,000 people drank a poison concoction during a gruesome ceremony.

The shocking deaths have sparked a heated controversy among citizens who claim the Japanese government hasn't done enough to stop the unnecessary deaths.

Hundreds of Japanese people are killing themselves every day and the government is doing nothing to stop them, said activist Takuhiro Nakura. "There should be a government effort to give warning people of the danger the cult represents."

There have been rumors that the Japanese government is allowing the suicides to continue as a method of solving the country's bulging overpopulation. Top officials say that accusation is totally false.

But for whatever reason, the suicides are continuing. And there are indications thousands more Heaven's Gate wannabes are getting ready to take the deadly leap.

In Japan, even more than in the U.S., Heaven's Gate has become a popular target for the media. Satori said. "Unfortunately, this is occurring with the Heaven's Gate people.

Every time there's a story and newspapers print a mass suicide, it stirs the interest and means even more suicide groups will be formed."

It's true that the media have jumped on the phenomenon.

At least two Japanese radio stations are running daily "Heaven's Gate" reports and a TV station has announced plans to air a weekly half hour "Heaven's Gate" show.

All this despite the fact the Hale-Bopp comet that started the whole thing has long since passed out of sight.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Super swimmer Sandra Garbe is so quick and comfortable in the water that she can actually catch a fish in her teeth!

The 25-year-old woman taught herself the trick when she was a girl of 14 and says she kept it up because it's fun and keeps her motley on built.

"It's not as hard as it looks," said Miss Garbe, an attractive blonde bookkeeper.

"All you have to do is spot a fish from the surface and hit the water fast. It's really a lot of fun," she added. "And it keeps me in shape."

The young woman says she has always been a strong swimmer and started trying to catch fish in her mouth "just to see if I could do it."

The first fish she ever caught was a palm-sized bluegill she snagged from a freshwater pond. Since that time she figures she's landed at least 200 more — including flounder, pompano, whiting, mullet and mackerel from the ocean and intracoastal waterways near her home.

On a recent fishing expedition with boyfriend Mark Rutherford, Miss Garbe dove into the water and snagged a pair of fat mullet while Mark fished successfully from a pier.

He has tried to persuade her to give exhibitions around the country but she says she's happy as a hobby.

"You might be surprised at the looks on people's faces when I dive into the water and come out with a fish," said Miss Garbe.

One time this guy on a yacht offered me $100 for every fish I caught but he refused to pay after I brought back five.

"The biggest fish I ever caught was a seven-pound mackerel," she continued.

"I've had my teeth on bigger fish but they're all strung there on my line hanging on."

Fed-up mom makes kids an offer they can't refuse

HIT THE BOOKS — OR I'LL BLOW YOUR BRAINS OUT!

By LUIGI SORDINI

PALERMO, Sicily — Fed up with her sons' failing grades, a miffed mom is trying a new approach to learning: She's forcing her sons to study at gunpoint!

Maria Puto, 44, makes her two teenaged sons spend at least three hours a night doing their homework, or else.

They know their mother means business because she winged Guido, 12, just last month when he told her he was sick and tired of studying.

"They've got to know I'm really serious this time," said Mrs. Puto, whose boys have been ordered to attend school this summer to improve their poor grades.

"Guido has already been held back twice and Luigi has been in the sixth grade for three years. They never do homework, but that's going to change.

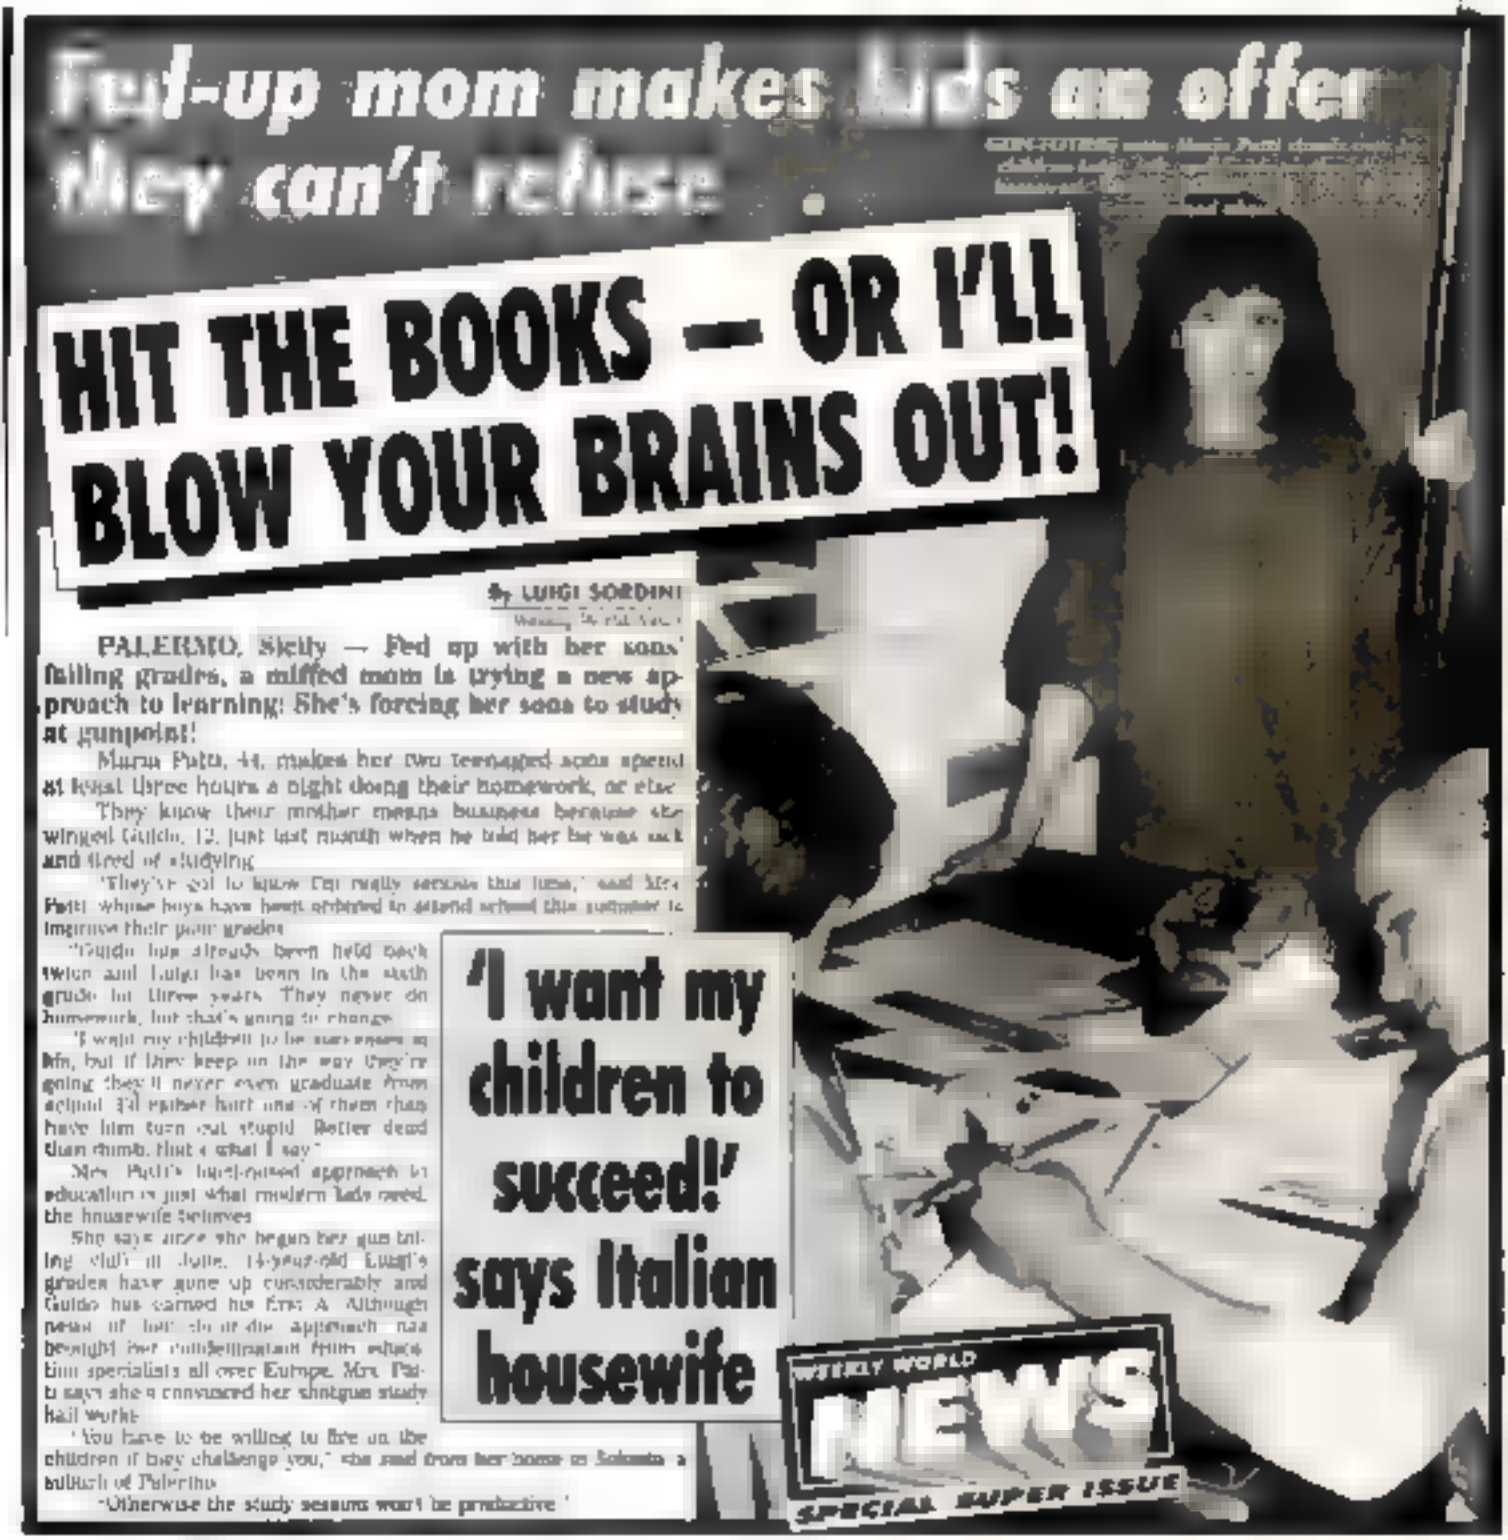
"I want my children to be successful in life, but if they keep on the way they're going they'll never even graduate. Even school I'd rather hurt one of them than have him turn out stupid. Better dead than dumb, that's what I say."

Mrs. Puto's bullet-paced approach to education is just what modern kids need, the housewife believes.

She says since she began her gun toting study hall in June, 14-year-old Luigi's grades have gone up considerably and Guido has earned his first A. Although none of her kids like the approach, it's brought her considerable praise from education specialists all over Europe. Mrs. Puto says she's convinced her shotgun study hall works.

"You have to be willing to fire on the children if they challenge you," she said from her home in Solunto, a suburb of Palermo.

"Otherwise the study sessions won't be productive."



Rapist files suit to prevent victim from

Herbert James Franklin, 31, recently pleaded guilty to the rape of a 19-year-old woman in Sydney's Hyde Park. He is awaiting sentencing.

But he claims that since committing the crime three months ago he has become a "born-again Christian and is deeply pro-life.

"Just because the baby came into existence under tragic circumstances doesn't take away his right to be born," Franklin told a reporter. "And just be-

THE DUMBER YOU ARE THE LONGER YOU'LL LIVE!

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

If you were born dumb as a dandelion, take heart — because the stupider you are, the longer you're likely to live!

That's the fascinating finding of scientists at Norway's University of Trondheim, who say being a peabrain can add up to 15 years to your life.

"There is a definite reverse correlation between intelligence and overall life expectancy," said renowned researcher Dr. Erling Drivdal.

"In other words, the person with an I.Q. of 100 can expect to outlive the person with an I.Q. of 160 by 12 to 15 years.

"It's as simple as that. Once you go below an I.Q. of 80, of course, you reach a level approaching retardation and then the advantages vanish."

Dr. Drivdal and four associates made their mind-boggling finding after an exhaustive 16-year study of more than 6,200 subjects in Scandinavia and America.

Astonishing new study links I.Q. to life span

"We started out assuming that the more intelligent a subject was, the longer his life expectancy would be, based on a higher standard of living and improved medical care," the noted sociologist told a reporter.

"When we found just the opposite, we were taken aback, to say the least."

The surprised scientists eventually concluded that foolheads live longer because they're less sensitive to the deadly pressures of modern life.

"Those with lower intelligence normally have low-paying, low-pressure jobs and often live in rural areas where the pace of life is slower," Dr. Drivdal said.

"They escape the stress and tension that bring on heart attacks and other debilitating illnesses, so they live longer.

"That, at least, is our best guess at this time."

Dr. Drivdal warned that his findings don't necessarily apply to individuals. "There are exceptions to every rule, and there are plenty of exceptions to this one," Dr. Drivdal admitted. "After all, Einstein lived to a ripe old age — and he was nobody's dummy."

'Clarbos call' for little Anna!

BABY CARTED AWAY WITH DIRTY LAUNDRY!

By KELLY TURNER, Weekly World News

BONN, Germany — Frantic parents Gerhard and Gisela Schmitt jumped for joy when their missing 6-month-old daughter Anna turned up safe and sound at an industrial laundry — in two tons of dirty clothes!

JUBILANT PARENTS Gerhard and Gisela Schmitt show where their precious daughter was found in an explosive laundry basket

Tot turns up 3 miles away — stuffed in pile of bed linens!

REENACTMENT shows Anna resting on laundryman's maple stool after her adventure

Incredibly, adorable Anna was stuffed all in a load of soiled laundry picked up from her parents' mailbox for cleaning.

The tiny tot apparently crawled into the giant mound of clothes and curled up for a nap while no one was looking and was swept by laundry workers.

"It was a nightmare," said Gisela. "I had put Anna down for a nap on the floor in the spare bedroom while I cleaned the nursery.

"When I went to check on her about an hour later she was gone. We searched the house from top to bottom but couldn't find her anywhere. She had simply vanished.

The frightened couple began calling neighbors to see if they'd seen the missing child. But when no one reported seeing her they called in the police.

Authorities organized a search party to comb the Schmitts' suburban neighborhood for the infant. But after hours of searching, they came up empty handed.

"When the police didn't find Anna after only one hour, we expected the worst," said Gerhard. "Since she can only crawl we knew she couldn't have gone far on her own.

"We were sure someone had kidnapped her."

Just as it began to get dark outside, the schmitts got a phone call from the manager of the laundry asking if they were missing a little girl. The driver who picked up laundry up at their home unwittingly let the people had a small child.

"We were overjoyed," said Gisela.

Laundry workers said they found Anna in a bin filled with almost two tons of dirty clothes. When they heard a noise and a little bi and there was Anna.

She was wrapped in a pile of bed linens that our laundryman had taken away that morning. We figure she fell asleep in the pile and other clothes got tossed on top of her.

"The laundryman must have tossed the bundle in the truck without seeing Anna."

HUMAN FIREBALL!

These startling photos show the horror unleashed when parachutist Franz Wuggetzer drifted out of control onto deadly power lines and was zapped with a massive jolt of 30,000 volts of electricity!

Incredibly, the 55-year-old Austrian survived the terrifying accident in which he plunged nearly six stories to the ground. But the sky diver spent three agonizing months in the hospital recovering from burns and injuries suffered in the fall.

"Nobody believed that he could live through it," said eyewitness Heinz Lindner, an amateur photographer who had the presence of mind to grab his camera and take these shocking pictures.

"He must have touched the cables for a half second at least. There was an enormous flash and bang, like a crack of lightning.

"Then we heard a thud as he hit the ground. His skin was burned over most of his body and he had a broken arm and leg."

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Weekly World News

Wuggetzer was enjoying an exciting afternoon with other members of a skydiving club from Tannheim, Austria, when disaster struck. The parachutists had taken a ski lift to the top of mountains near Tannheim, strapped on their parachutes and leaped off the top of a 6,000-foot peak. Wuggetzer was floating slowly down into the valley, gliding on air currents, when a sudden downdraft seized him and he hurtled toward the high-tension wires.

"I was photographing him as he came down," said Lindner, a German fireman. "Suddenly I saw him frantically trying to avoid the cables. I kept on shooting by instinct."

When Wuggetzer clammed into the power lines he lit up like a flare, a bright arc of electricity flashing and crackling like lightning.

The sky diver's body short-circuited the high-power wires, scorching his skin badly and then he plummeted nearly six stories to the ground.

Horror-stricken witnesses rushed to the injured man and took turns giving him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until a rescue helicopter arrived and whisked him to a hospital.

A team of doctors fought for eight hours to save Wuggetzer's life. He remained in the hospital for three months. He was still on crutches when he checked out, but the burns had healed.

ARE YOU A GOBBLE GUTS?

GOBBLERS love to have their mouths full and heap their plates at every meal.

By ROGER HARRIS
Weekly World News

Are you a muncher, a sad snacker or a gobble guts? Now you can find out with this fascinating new quiz designed to help you lose weight by focusing on how you eat rather than what.

The test is the invention of nutritionist and author Dr. William Hartston, who designed it to reveal the eating problems behind most people's expanding waistlines.

To take the test, answer the six questions below and compare your results to the ones in the box. Then look at the descriptions at the bottom of the page.

Take this test and find out

1 Good morning — what's for breakfast? A) I can't begin my day without a big breakfast, even when I know I'll have lunch and dinner, too. B) A nice sweet cup of coffee is all I need. C) I snack on anything I find in the refrigerator.

2 Now it's time for your coffee break. A) If I can get my hands on some nuts or cookies, I'll have a few of those. B) I try to resist, but I almost always give in and have a pastry or a doughnut. C) If I'm bored or frustrated, I'll have a snack with my coffee or tea.

3 You've been invited to a free buffet luncheon. A) I'm going to try everything on the table. B) If I have been having a bad day, I'll cheer myself up by having a really super feast. C) It'll make a nice change from my usual lunch of a burger and fries.

4 After work, it's off to a restaurant. A) I'll choose a place where I can relax. B) I'll order a drink with some nuts or chips to snack on while I'm waiting for dinner. C) I like a dish on the side so I can sample my friend's plate. B) If I feel sad or lonely, I'll eat a little more. C) I'll have my potatoes dripping with butter and my salad with lots of dressing. D) Even if I'm feeling full, I'll clean my plate. E) I'll make room for dessert, no matter what.

6 Now for the weekly supermarket shopping. A) I can't pass the candy counter without buying some. B) I stock up on plenty of food, just in case. C) I lay in a supply of sodas.

. . . what type of eater you are!

Compare your answers to these to see what kind of eating habits you have. You may have one, two or even all of the eating problems described below.

GOBBLER: 1a, 4c, 5d, 6b.
SWEET TOOTH: 1b, 3a, 4a, 6c.
MUNCHER: 1c, 2a, 3a, 5a
FAT FADDIST: 2b, 3c, 4b, 5c
SAD SNACKER: 2c, 3b, 4c, 5b.

Here's what your eating habits tell you:

GOBBLER

Your problem is overeating.

You love to have your mouth full and you heap your plate at every meal.

Cut down on snacks, appetizers, munchies and extra helpings.

SWEET TOOTH

You love sweets so much that you are upsetting your body chemistry with too much sugar.

Gradually wean yourself from this bad habit by cutting down on sweets over the next few weeks.

MUNCHER

You eat constantly, but you don't realize what you're eating.

For the next few days, note down what you eat and when. Then reduce your food intake by eliminating what you don't really need.

FAT FADDIST

Fat is your downfall. You eat far too much of it, and it's endangering your health.

Cut out all that butter and switch from fried foods to broiled or baked.

You'll be surprised at how fast you lose weight.

SAD SNACKER

Every time you feel bad, you eat. Worry, depression, fear, boredom — they all mean snack time to you. Find other ways to unwind and note when you feel like eating — it could help you come to grips with problems.

Listen to them. They left their bad luck forever. These are real and genuine. Some of them are incredible.

AT THE HIPPODROME

Mr. Richard L., of Brooklyn:

"... and then I won a lot of money. And we could pay for the surgery of my son. I always carry with me The Golden Clover."

A WISHED TRAVEL

Mrs. Anne K. of Los Angeles:

"I didn't believe in these things. We were so much at the Little Red, now we go to Europe every year."

FRESH MONEY

Mrs. Rose H. of Washington, DC:

"I asked my husband many times to order The Clover. It was magical. The money would never last to until the end of the month. Now we are almost millionaires, because we have money at the Casino every week."

A GOOD JOB

Mrs. Christine R., of Miami:

"My daughter had been unemployed for a whole year. She ordered The Clover and she got a job with an excellent monthly salary. She is so happy now. Thanks to me."

THE WOMAN OF MY DREAMS

Mr. Charles A., of Phoenix:

"I found the woman that I always was looking for. Thanks to you and The Clover. I recommend it."

MY OWN BUSINESS, FINALLY

Mrs. Angela F. of Michigan:

YOUR LIFE CAN BE A NEW ONE

What the Four-Leaf and 33 wishes Clover made for these people can do for you too. You don't have to believe in three things, but you have to admit that there is something in it. Because The Clover has a magnetic and powerful vibration which reactivates the power of clairvoyance that is hidden in each one of us.

Think then that all of your unachieved dreams can become true. But the most incredible of this is the following: Turn pen on return it all and request any most wanted wishes do not become true within 3 months of having received it. Why do we do this? Simple because we are convinced that you will have good luck. A lot of good luck.

Perhaps the luck that you never imagine to have. We are so sure that we give you the guarantee of success. You may return it and we give you your money back. What did you lose? Nothing. Absolutely nothing. Because if it works for you, you win. If it doesn't work for you, you also win because you get your money back. You are protected. But we are sure that you won't return The Golden Clover. Good luck will be with you.

That is why we suggest that you send your order now. Don't waste any time. You will be very pleased when you receive it. Because your life will change as if by magic. In the envelope you will find Prosperous and The Secret Manner to Make Your Wishes Come True. That is how to make the luck wishes, the rare one have to give it. Where to carry it. Everything is explained there step to step.

Think that we appeal to such things for good luck only once in our lives. These things cannot be bought every day. Be fast. It is put away in your life one. Please, remind. We don't lose anything. Don't you think it would be silly to let this opportunity of changing your life get away?

3 MONTHS OF TOTAL GUARANTEE

This is no offer. Order this true talisman right and, if within 3 months you do not obtain 100% positive results, you can return it and request your money back. That is a written guarantee with which we are protecting the money that you invested.
